Committee Survey of Crowded Conditions in Schools is Under Way

Superintendent Van Ingen Reports to Education Board That Council Committee is Studying Congestion.

NEW TEACHERS

Report Also Made That Three New Teachers Have Been Hired by Board.

Superintendent of Schools B. C. Van Ingen made a report Friday evening to the Board of Education relative to the progress made in the investigation by a special committee from the Common Council which has been appointed to look into the reported congestion of the public schools of the city. The committee appointed from the Common Council, he said, had visited the grade schools of the city and also the high school in company with Mayor Heiselman, president of the Common Council John Schwenk and himself and after that inspection had held a conference at the office of the superintendent when various matters pertaining to the school system was discussed. The committee consists of Aldermen Garron, Murphy and Peyer.

Since that meeting the committee had held a meeting to discuss the matter and as a result several questions had been submitted for answer. These questions were in regard to school capacities, number of students in each grade, enrollment in various schools both resident and non-resident, and also as to the enrollments for the past 10 years. Mr. Van Ingen stated that he had supplied the information demanded to the best of his ability but there were some answers which had to be made in a general way.

Seeks Enrollment

The committee had desired to know the enrollment in the seventh and eighth grades in the schools and the amount of money expended during the past five years for improvements, etc. A request had also been made as to when the last re-districting of the city had taken place and also as to the amount of state aid which was received, the amount of tuition which non-residents paid. In relation to the enrollment at the high school the committee had requested the attendance from 1926 to 1936, the number of non-residents, the number of freshmen in the school and where the out of town enrollments were from. A request had been made as to the surrounding high school facilities, capacity of these buildings and the number of students enrolled in each school and as to whether the schools could care for more.

Mr. Van Ingen said the requested facts had been given the committee and an estimate had also been given as to the increase which might be expected in the tax roll if non-resident students were rejected and as to the expected increase in school tax if a junior high school were erected. This figure he said had been placed at from $3 to $4 per thousand more in either case. While no exact figure could be given it appeared as though the additional cost to the city taxpayer would be about the same in either instance. Rejection of non-residents or the erection of a junior high school he said would make the tax rate about the same.

Figures had also been supplied the committee as to the amount of state aid which is received for the city school system under the present plan and what might be expected if a junior high school were erected.

Mayor Heiselman has been given also a report of the survey which the board had made by state department experts about a year ago when the junior high school proposition was being considered.

Band Wants Uniforms

Trustee Feeney brought up the matter of uniforms for the school band. He said several requests had been made to him by members of the band. Other schools had their band in uniform and more school spirit and interest in music might be brought about by uniforming the band it was stated. The cost was put at about $150 or $250. The suggestion offered was that the board was in favor of uniforming the band but believed that the band however should perhaps give a concert and secure funds for the uniforms. Several members expressed this opinion but stated the board was willing to support such a movement.

The finance committee offered the October payroll amounting to $27,-665.44 and also bills to the amount of $6,896.39.

A communication was received from District No. 6, town of Ulster, inquiring whether the board would be able to care for an expected class of 10 graduates in January. The trustees asked the Kingston board to give them some assurance as to what might be expected so that arrangements could be made for the mid-term graduation class. The matter was referred to the superintendent.

The teachers' committee reported the engagement of three additional teachers. Herbert F. Fiets has been hired as an additional teacher in the high school to teach commercial subjects due to the large class. He is a graduate of Cortland Teachers' College, Columbia University, with B.S.

Kingston, Benedictine Hospitals to Join With "3-cents-a-day Plan"

The Kingston and Benedictine Hospitals of this city will join the New York Associated Hospital Service, in what is known as the "Three-cents-a-day plan," according to action taken at a meeting of representatives of boards of trustees of hospitals in the Mid-Hudson Valley, held at Vassar Hospital, Poughkeepsie, Friday.

John Van Nostrand, president of the board of trustees of Highland Hospital, Beacon, presided at the meeting, which elected Joseph J. Weber, superintendent of Vassar Hospital, to represent the Mid-Hudson area on the board of the Associated Hospital Service.

Under the so-called "three-cents-a-day" plan, those who join will be entitled to hospital care for three weeks during each year upon payment of $10. In the case of a man and his wife the payment will be $18 and a charge of $25 is made for families. This payment covers hospital cost only and does not cover doctors' fees or charges for special nurses. In cases where more than three weeks' hospital treatment is needed, a reduction of 25 per cent is allowed on charges for the excess time.

Local Representatives

Kingston representatives at the meeting Friday were Dr. Charles E Parsons, who represented the Ulster County Medical Society; E. E. Coykendall, president of the board of trustees of the Kingston Hospital and Sisters Delphine and Rose Anita from the Benedictine Hospital.

Dr. Parsons said this morning that the Mid-Hudson area will probably take in the counties of Ulster, Greene, Orange, Dutchess, and Schoharie and extend to include Sharon, Conn. The Catskill Hospital and the Sharon Hospital were not represented at the Friday meeting, but will join the movement.

An office will be opened in Poughkeepsie and about December 1 a field worker will visit the various communities included in the territory to present the plan to various organization service clubs and the like. It is a group insurance plan and members will be organized in groups of ten.

The plan has been in operation in New York city for about a year and according to Dr. Parsons has about 135,000 members already enrolled in New York city. It has also reached north as far as Westchester county, where it has been operating for several months past.

No Delayed Count.

Louisville, Ky., Oct. 24 (AP).—Kentucky won't have a delayed count November 3 to give the nation the jitters in event the result of the presidential election hinges upon its 11 electoral votes Four years ago a new election law, designed to prevent fraud, postponed the start of the count until the next day. The legislature yielded this year to a general complaint that the delay frayed the nerves of candidates and voters alike. It retained, however, the main feature of the law that precinct officials deliver the tri-padlocked metal boxes to the court houses for tabulation under close scrutiny of party watchers.

Under Police Escort

Hartford, Conn., Oct. 24 (AP).—Bainbridge Colby, secretary of state under President Wilson, left Hartford today under police escort following a telephoned "tip" that an attempt would be made to "knife" him at the close of a Republican rally. Colby, addressing himself to "conscience-Democrats," at the rally last night charged President Roosevelt with being a voluntary or involuntary recipient of Communist support and asserted "If his plans succeed, there will be no Democratic party." The tip, one of several received yesterday, was telephoned to Bushnell Memorial Hall where Colby spoke.

Expanding Equipment

New York, Oct. 24 (AP).—With the largest registration in history, New York city is expanding its mechanical polling equipment to record a huge vote on Election Day. A total of 4,514 voting machines the Board of Elections disclosed today will be available for use in the city on November 3 with 4,421 in operation. The balance will be held in reserve to plug any breech caused by mechanical failures. Two years ago, when there were actually more election districts in the city, there were only 3,850 voting machines in use here. One for each district.

Treasury Receipts

Washington, Oct. 24 (AP).—The position of the treasury on October 22: Receipts, $9,694,773.12; expenditures, $28,269,148.25; balance, $1,-872,269,397.81; customs receipts for the month, $28,372,605.32. Receipts for the fiscal year (since July 1) $1,344,857,245.25; expenditures, $2,-193,652,114.61, including $922,-675,192.19 of emergency expenditures; excess of expenditures, $844,-794,869.36; gross debt, $32,633,-917.35, a decrease of $2,902,528.50 under the previous day; gold assets, $11,010,990,036.46.

Man's Body Found

Boston, Oct. 24 (AP).—Police pulled a man's body from the Fort Point channel today not far from the spot where yesterday they found the head of slain Grayce Asquith, dismembered blonde photographer's model.

Will Be Divorced

While the world watches, Mrs. Wallie Simpson soon will apply for a divorce from Ernest A. Simpson (above), wealthy London broker and shipper. Mrs Simpson is the center of international gossip because of her friendship with King Edward (Associated Press Photo)

White Wigged Red Robed Judge Hawke Arrives for Trial

Gives No Indication When Simpson Case Will Be Tried—Police Hold Rehearsal for "Wallie" Arrival

Ipswich, Eng., Oct. 24 (AP)—Heralded by two crimson-jacketed trumpeters wearing the bearskin busbies of the Coldstream Guards, Justice Sir John Anthony Hawke today opened the Ipswich assizes for the "Enter Madame" divorce drama of King Edward's gay-eyed American friend, Mrs. Ernest ("Wallie") Simpson.

Justice Hawke, escorted by the red-robed lord mayor of Epswich who wore his heavy gold chain of office and a black cocked-hat, began the hearing of criminal cases without hinting when the case of Mrs. Simpson and five other divorce actions would be reached.

Bystanders bared their heads as the King's representative, amid a fanfare of silver trumpets, stepped from his automobile and walked up the steps of the ancient graystone courthouse.

A cordon of police kept the crowd back.

Justice Hawke wore his wig and brilliant red robe.

A police "rehearsal", of strategy for Mrs. Simpson's arrival at the ancient grey stone courthouse, preceded the formal court opening.

Practice Session

With two beefy constables on the running-board, truncheons agrip, a police car pulled up at the back gates of the courthouse, turned into the yard and stopped at the main entrance.

The constables swung off. One hurried around to the rear of the car—and together they went through the motions of escorting a passenger through a jostling crowd of spectators already beginning to swarm around the courthouse.

Mrs. Simpson, it appeared, will be given the fanfare of a visiting American film star, but she will not be held up by autograph hunters.

In all probability, the captivating former Baltimore debutante will not

League's First Dance Oct. 28

On Wednesday evening, October 28, the Junior League will hold a dance at the Governor Clinton Hotel, following the concert sponsored by the Cooperative Concert Association of Kingston. Dances will be held by the Junior League after each of the following three concerts, the second being in November and the other two in the spring.

Patron tickets will admit one person to each of the four dances, or one couple to two dances. Single tickets may also be procured.

Several dining rooms have been reserved by the Junior League for those wishing to entertain supper parties at the dance. Arrangements for parties may be made by calling Mrs. G. V. D. Hutton, who, aided by Mrs. Jay LeFevre of New Paltz, and a committee of seven members, is in charge of the suppers.

Mrs. Berthold Knauth, chairman of the music committee, has procured Roger Beer and his seven piece orchestra for the evening. Dancing will be from 10 until 2.

The league feels that everything possible has been done to make this dance enjoyable and a good forerunner of the three dances to follow.

Mrs. Connell Undergoes Operation at Kingston Hospital This Morning

Plutarch Victim of a Hit-Run Driver, Suffering from Fractured Skull and Broken Leg; Son is Also Hurt Badly.

AUCHMOODY JAILED

Troopers Baker and Klein Given Much Credit for Apprehending Henry Auchmoody.

Mrs. Siegried Connell, 38, of Plutarch, who was struck by a hit and run driver while returning to her home Thursday evening with groceries and left lying alongside the road, suffering from a fractured skull and a leg broken in several places, was operated upon at the Kingston Hospital this morning. Mrs. Connell's five-year-old son, Thomas, was also knocked down and sustained a severe injury to one knee, but was not taken to the hospital. A second child who was with her was not injured This afternoon Mrs Connell's condition was reported as fairly good.

Arthur Minard of Plutarch, who happened along not a great while after the accident, found the seriously injured woman lying where she had fallen. He took her and the boy to the office of Dr. Branner and later Mrs. Connell was taken to the Kingston Hospital.

Corporal Baker and Trooper Klein were notified and began an immediate investigation, but up to a late hour that night had been unable to locate the driver of the car that had struck Mrs. Connell and her son, although they questioned everyone in that locality as to cars that had been seen on the road that afternoon. The next morning they renewed the investigation and finally learned that Henry Auchmoody, 18, of Plutarch, had been out with his car, according to an informant, about the time of the accident. The troopers said that Auchmoody had been questioned the night before, but had denied all knowledge of the affair or that he had been out He was again questioned at length and confessed, the troopers state, that he had struck the woman and had heard her scream, but became panic stricken and drove on without stopping. He blamed lights from another car for the accident.

Auchmoody was arraigned before Justice A. V. Dayton of New Paltz on a charge of leaving the scene of an accident. The justice committed him to the Ulster county jail for six months and in addition imposed a fine of $150. As to whether he will have to face a still more serious charge depends upon the outcome of Mrs. Connell's injuries.

Corporal Baker and Trooper Klein are being given much credit for the successful and speedy manner in which they solved the case, as there were no witnesses except the two small children and they had no description of the car which caused the accident. Further, they state that the car itself, an old Ford, bore no marks that it had been involved in a recent accident.

Elizabeth Smith Freed.

New York, Oct. 24 (AP).—Saved from the serving a prison term through a suspended sentence, 18-year-old Elizabeth Smith sought today the seclusion of a home offered by an unnamed benefactress. The girl who had been convicted in Bronx County Court of having thrown her new-born baby from the roof of an apartment building expressed a feeling of happiness as she heard Judge Harry Stackell suspend sentence against her. "I am happy for the first time in many months," the frail girl said.

Restful Week-end

Washington, Oct. 24 (AP).—After telling businessmen the New Deal aims "to keep politics out of business", President Roosevelt looked forward today to a restful week-end before entering the home-stretch drive of his race for re-election.

Europe Seethes Ominously Today as Spanish Civil War Violence Draws to Climax

Portugal Breaks Off Diplomatic Relations with Madrid Government; Nazis Recognize Italian Claim to Ethiopia.

RUSSIAN STAND

Soviet Renew Demand for Blockade of Portugal to Stop Aid to Rebels.

By the Associated Press.

A dark tempest of grave new charges and ominous words, with blood-spattered Spain at the vortex, engulfed Europe today.

These cyclonic developments stood out in relief from the background of political storm:

Spain, its capital cringing beneath the echoing roar of Fascist bombers, charged authoritarian Portugal with the death of 40 Spanish government sailors in a naval battle during which, it charged, a Portuguese motorship painted like a German vessel sank the motorship Fernando Po.

Soviet Russia, following up its cryptic announcement it will not be bound by the European "hands off Spain" agreement any more than any other nation, renewed its demand before a non-intervention subcommittee for a blockade of Portugal to "stop" Italo-German arms shipments to Spanish insurgents.

Portugal Ends Relations.

Portugal suddenly broke off diplomatic relations with the Madrid government.

With Italy reported pondering withdrawal from the non-intervention body, which met in full session Friday, Premier Benito Mussolini in effect cried out to Italains at Corridonia: "Intervention is the purest ideal of Fascism!"

Madrid, in new charges against Germany, declared 15 German submarines had entered the Mediterranean nine days ago and that, on October 8, 160 German youths reached Seville in an open boat with 13 anti-aircraft guns for insurgent use.

Germany, while Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler entertained Count Galeazzo Ciano, Il Duce's foreign minister and son-in-law, granted recognition to Italian Ethiopia, won by a war which the League of Nations stamped as "agression."

Moscow's diplomatic disavowal of any closer neutrality ties than the nations which she accuses of sending arms to Spain—Germany, Italy, and Portugal — was explained in two ways:

Should the world charge Russia with breaking up the neutrality pact, Russia can reply by citing alleged previous Fascist violations and her own "clarification" of her position.

Should the world smile upon Russia's step, she can say she was the only nation frank and honest enough to demand that the "unfairly treated" Madrid government have the right to buy arms.

Remains in Committee

For the time being, Russia remained, therefore, in the non-intervention committee. And on one point she was strictly silent: Whether or not she is going to send arms to Spain.

Remaining to be decided by the non-intervention group, which will meet as a full body again next Wednesday was the authenticity of Moscow's charges against the Fascist states and of their counter-charges to the effect that Russia has sent arms to the Spanish government.

The European tornado all but overshadowed the fighting in Spain.

But Madrid, shaken by repeated "terror" visits from insurgent airplanes yesterday, feared a mass aerial bombardment at almost any moment.

Workers with picks and shovels parade through the center of the city, shouting: "All stand together! We choose death before slavery!"

Women whispered in terror: "The Moors are coming!"

All members of the Left Republican party of President Manuel Azana, who is himself in Barcelona, were ordered mobilized. And 10 short miles from the capital the defending armies dug in at Mostoles, sworn to withstand an insurgent artillery barrage delayed only by muddy roads.

Ready to Aid

(By The Associated Press)

Moscow, Oct. 24—Soviet Russia indicated today it is prepared to render immediate technical, if not military, support to the government of Spain.

This, observers declared, was hinted in announcement of the recent appointment of Vladimir Antonoff Ommovsenko, Bolshevist civil war hero, as consul at Barcelona.

Ommovsenko already is on the job at Barcelona. It was pointed out he could become an important adviser in Catalonia when, and if, the Spanish government eventually is forced to reorganize and launch a counter offensive against the insurgents from that autonomous part of Spain.

The new official was a revolutionary hero at St. Petersburg, cradle of the Russian upheaval. He was commander-in-chief of the military garrison there during the fierce early days of revolutionary fighting when

Landon Speaks at Indianapolis; Al Smith at Pittsburgh Tonight

Judge Bleakley and Senator Fearon Here On Tuesday at Noon

Judge Bleakley, the Republican candidate for governor, will be the principal speaker at the big rally to be held at the Municipal Auditorium on Tuesday at 12 o'clock noon. The other speaker will be Senator Fearon who was the principal speaker the past summer at the big Republican outing at Tillson Lake.

Both Judge Bleakley and Senator Fearon will have messages well worth hearing. At first it had been planned to have both men here for an evening rally, but that had been found impossible, and in order to afford the voters of Ulster county an opportunity to meet Judge Bleakley personally and hear his message it was decided that the meeting be held at noon.

It is expected that every voter, who can possibly do so, will attend the rally and hear the judge and Senator Fearon.

Campaign Expenditures.

Washington, Oct. 24 (AP).—The Democratic National Committee today reported campaign expenditures of $1,324,416 between September 1 and October 21, bringing its total disbursements since June 1 to $2,-233,256. Campaign contributions since September 1 were set at $1,-408,947. Earlier donations raised the total to $2,490,715. The committee's statement, filed with the clerk of the house, showed a balance on hand of $84,531.

Pittsburgh, Oct. 24 (AP)—Alfred E. Smith, former governor of New York, cancelled conferences today to rest for a speech carrying on his campaign against the New Deal

He declined to discuss the subject of his address to be delivered tonight at a rally called by the Independent Coalition of American women. The address will be broadcast over a national network beginning at 10 p. m. (E. S. T.)

His visit to Pittsburgh is one of a long series of thrusts into Pennsylvania by national political figures, seeking votes of what once was a normally Republican state, but now is regarded as pivotal.

Earlier this month President Roosevelt and Cal. Frank Knox, Republican nominee for vice president, addressed rival rallies in Pittsburgh on the same night. Governor Landon is scheduled to speak here next Tuesday.

Landon Moves Eastward

Aboard Landon special enroute to Indianapolis, Oct. 24 (AP)—Gov. Alf M. Landon, moving eastward on a 3,000-miles dash from Pacific to Atlantic, assigned the week-end today to a bid for Indiana's 14 presidential electoral votes.

In a major speech at Indianapolis tonight, the Republican nominee is expected to discuss foreign affairs. The address will be broadcast.

Turning his drive southward after leaving Indianapolis Sunday afternoon (2:15 p. m., C. S. T.), Landon scheduled a speechmaking stop at Baltimore, Md., at 10:45 a. m., Monday, before reaching Philadelphia for a major address Monday night. Tuesday night he will speak in Pittsburgh. Then he planned to stop in Trenton, N. J., at noon Wednesday on his way to New York for the climactic speech of the campaign Friday night, in Madison Square Garden.

"This campaign in Indiana as everywhere else is a fighting campaign on the part of Republicans and Independents and Democrats for good government," Landon said in a brief statement.

Rights Of Average Man.

"We want a government that is concerned about the economic rights and the opportunities of the average man. We want a government that is also concerned about the pocketbooks of everybody. We are all paying taxes every day in our lives.

"This is serious business to all of us The kind of government that we are going to live under and do business under in our local communities, in our state and in our nation is always serious business

"So I have weighed very carefully every word and every pledge that I have made in this campaign I shall continue to do so. To me the platform adopted at Cleveland is a pact with the American people on which the Republican party must make good. Party platforms to me are not to be thrown away in the waste paper basket after election."

Swinging across Oklahoma, Missouri and Illinois overnight, Landon made some concessions to a cold and sore throat but apparently was feeling much improved.

Denounces Statements.

At Tulsa, Okla., he denounced as

Record of County Clerk Simpson Merits His Re-election at Polls

JAMES A. SIMPSON

The universal approval with which his nomination has been received by the voters of Ulster county indicates that James A. Simpson of Phoenicia, Republican nominee for the office of county clerk, will be reelected to that office by an overwhelming majority. This approval of Mr. Simpson is due apparently to the general recognition of the fact that he has given to the people of Ulster county such a completely satisfactory administration.

It is a well-known fact by everyone that Mr. Simpson combines integrity, experience in public affairs and good sound judgment, all qualities preeminently desirable in the man who holds the important office for which he has been nominated.

New York, Oct. 24 (AP).—Just who has the last radio say in presidential campaigns nowadays all depends upon who signs up for the latest possible broadcast hour on the networks. Not always has it been the incumbent; in fact, it has been the opposing candidate as often as otherwise. This campaign-end apparently it is to be President Roosevelt, for the networks already have contracts calling for a broadcast by him from 11 to 12 o'clock election eve, with Gov. A. M. Landon to speak in the previous hour.

ON THE SATURDAY NIGHT LIST:

Just because the leaves have fallen and winter overcoats again appear on the streets it does not mean that all masonry work should cease. Quite the contrary. The very fact that most people feel that way is the cause of a lay-off of masonry labor during the winter months. This lay-off makes labor more available for such work and increases the possibility of getting good mechanics.

Canned beef imports for the first five months of this year were more than 43 million pounds, or 27 per cent more than the five year average. Pork imports for the same five months were 12,750,000 pounds as against 2,750,000 pounds for the same months of last year. The imports for May alone were double the pork imports for the entire year of 1934.

St. Remy Church Services Postponed

Owing to the fact that the furnace has been dismantled and it has been impossible because of unforeseen circumstances to finish the repairs, there will be no services at the church Sunday afternoon, October 25.

The Smithsonian Institution at Washington, D. C., was established by statute in 1846, under the terms of the will of James Smithson, an Englishman, who bequeathed his fortune in 1826 to the United States to found an institution for the "increase and diffusion of knowledge among men."

Joseph Israels Here Wednesday, Nov. 4

There are four remaining lectures in the series which is being sponsored by the Kingston Schoolwomen's Club, and the next speaker will be Joseph Israels, star reporter for the New York Times and Pathe News, who will bring to his audience the story of Ethiopia's struggle against her Roman conqueror. In December William Rose Benet, poet, critic and editor, will speak and in January Clayton Hamilton, authority on drama, will come to Kingston. Lieutenant Comander George O. Noville, who accompanied Byrd to Little America, will close the series in February.

All the speakers to be presented have been selected by the Schoolwomen's Club through the Cooperators of America, a non-profit organization established two years ago to make it possible for the average American community to hear brilliant speakers at nominal cost. Cooperative booking of lecturers of note, with the elimination of wasteful railway fares and non-productive open days, have made it possible for Kingston to hear this group of noted speakers. The dates for the lectures are as follows: November 4, Joseph Israels; December 2, William Rose Benet; January 6, Clayton Hamilton; and February 3, Commander George Noville.

Entertainments at St. James

The Collins Entertainment Festival will begin in St. James Church on Thursday evening, November 12, with the Ambassador Male Quartet, and will continue for four weeks. On November 19, the Modelia Entertainers, masters of several instruments, will give a varied program. On November 26, Robert Zimmerman, deep sea diver, will bring an exhibit and a most interesting lecture. On December 3, "Cricket," a three act comedy, will be given by a group of professional actors and actresses. All of the Collins plays are written for them especially, and are equally interesting and desirable for children and adults.

Democratic Women Entertained

Preceding the rally of the Ulster County Democratic Women's Club on Monday, October 17, at the Governor Clinton Hotel, the welcoming committee entertained the speakers at dinner at the hotel. Mrs. Charles Whitman of New York city was the guest of honor together with Mrs. Nancy Schoonmaker of Woodstock, and Mrs. Grosvenor Allen of Oneida. The members of the committee attending the dinner were: Mrs. Howard A. Lewis, Mrs. John W. Searing, Miss Anna M. DeWitt, Mrs. Charles De La Vergne, Jr., Mrs. Joan Dwyer Goldrick, Mrs. Bernard Culloton and Miss Margaret Kennedy. At the rally which followed, Mrs. Searing introduced the speakers.

Speaker Tells How to Put the Garden to Bed

The Ulster Garden Club met on Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Joseph M. Fowler of Wall street. In the absence of the president, Mrs. Everett Fowler, first vice-president, conducted the meeting. The speaker of the afternoon was Henry E. Downer of Poughkeepsie, instructor of horticulture at Vassar College. Mr. Downer showed the group specimens of lesser known varieties of such familiar shrubs as barberry, and cotoneaster, which he urged his listeners to plant. His subject was "Putting the Garden to Bed" and he explained in detail the proper winter care of shrubs and perennials.

Following the meeting Mrs. Fowler served tea. Mrs. Frederick Warren and Mrs. Charles De La Vergne poured. The final meeting of the year will be held with Mrs. Augusta Hutton on Tuesday, November 3. At this time the members will show photographs and movies of their gardens taken during the year.

Guild to Present Play in November

The Kingston Player's Guild have chosen for their first production of their new year, a startling melodrama in four acts, "The Cat and the Canary" by John Willard. The cast is as follows:

Roger Crosby .. William Heitzman
"Mammy" Pheasant.. Theresa Lloyd
Harry Blythe ..... John Burgevin
Susan Silsby ..... Helen Pollack
Cicely Young .. Anna Helen Brogan
Charles Wilder ..... James Martin
Paul Jones ..... Robert Flynn
Annabelle West .... Marion Farrell
Hendricks ..... Albert E. Milliken
Patterson ..... Harold Macholdt

The play will be presented in the Kingston High School Auditorium, the latter part of November. A definite date will be announced in a few days.

The Guild also wishes to express its thanks and appreciation to Miss Madeline Tarrant, supervisor of dramatics in Kingston High School, who gave so willingly of her time and effort in casting the play. S Telford Read, will coach the play. Mr. Read has had much experience in coaching plays and the Guild justly feels that under his supervision success is assured.

The Guild is desirous of securing anyone in the city who is in any way interested in dramatics. The policy of the Guild is to present to its audiences new talent as often as possible. In "The Cat and the Canary" the Guild will present for the first time in one of their productions William Heitzman and Mrs. Helen Pollock. Both Mr. Heitzman and Mrs. Pollock have had considerable experience in high school and other plays. The Guild is happy indeed to present these two knowing a polished performance may be expected of them both.

IMPROPER AND TRUE.

President Roosevelt must hold the intelligence of the American voters in pretty low estimate if he thinks they will be impressed by his characterization of the Republican leadership as that of Janus, the two-faced Roman God. Who more than the President himself deserves to be thus represented? Who was it who accepted "100 per cent" the platform of the 1932 Democratic National Convention and then proceeded to scrap nearly every important plank it contained? Who was it who solemnly promised one thing to the people and then did another?

For a man of Mr. Roosevelt's written record to charge Governor Landon with inconsistency is not only an exhibition of the grossest personal impropriety. It is a perversion of the facts as well. Mr. Landon has not, as the President asserts, played one tune in the East, and another in the West. It is true that he has devised a farm and drouth prevention program which will cost money. It is likewise true that he is committed to the theory that relief must be extended to the deserving needy and the worthy unemployed. But when the present waste is eliminated and the present incompetence driven out, neither of these projects will constitute the drain on the United States treasury which is the mark of the Roosevelt Administration. Nor is the fulfillment of them in the least incompatible with the economical and thrifty government to which the governor, in his Eastern addresses, has dedicated himself. This country will always have funds for national necessities. It never will have so much money that it can afford to throw any of it away.

LITTLE SECURITY OFFERED

Abraham Epstein, executive secretary of the American Association for Social Security, declares the Roosevelt administration plan for old age insurance offers little security for the aged and cannot meet the needs of the aged for almost a generation to come.

In order to acquire an annuity of only $22.50 per month a worker will have to earn at least $100 each month for 20 years. Only those who have earned a salary of $2,000 each year for 43 years will be able to achieve the maximum annuity of $85 a month. In view of this the requirement that no person can get the annuity to which he, himself, has contributed unless he gives up his job is not only senseless but is illustrative of the fantastic dreaming behind much of the act.

Today under the non-contributory pension systems in operation in about 40 states, a needy couple may receive up to $60 monthly without ever having contributed one single penny. In contrast, the man who will have contributed from his wages every week for 20 years to the insurance fund, will be able to draw altogether only about half that sum and then only if he gives up all regular work.

Not only does this act fall short in providing for our dependent aged during the next generation, but it places an immediate back-breaking burden upon the younger workers—those between 20 and 30 years of age—because it is these workers who must bear the bulk of the burden for supporting the present older generation, in addition to providing for their own old age. Young working men and women are forced to pay premiums for their old-age annuities which are about 40 per cent higher than any private insurance company would require for the same retirement benefits.

Moreover, since the act creates no legal claims to benefits and the contributions which start next January will go into the general fund, there is no definite assurance that annuities will ever be paid. Nothing in the act can prevent future Congresses from dissipating the funds as they please.

WHAT FOOD CAN DO.

People are getting used to the idea of food having a good deal to do with health and growth, but few yet seem to realize what great effects diet may produce. Sir Robert McCarrison has been carrying on some interesting experiments in England with white rats, which are pretty good laboratory substitutes for human beings. They were all of the same stock and heritage. He treated them all alike from their birth, except for food. As a result, they differed in appearance, size and behavior very much as do Englishmen, Frenchmen, Japanese and the people of India. They had received the same food eaten by those various groups.

One group of rats were heavy and stocky, with rough and bristling hair, always energetic and ready for a fight. They had been fed with bread and jam, boiled beef, mutton and fish and vegetables and tea, like British workmen. A group brought up on the Pathan diet of northern India were large, but with sleek, smooth fur, and while strong, they were gently disposed, like the Pathans. Rats fed on rich French food, with much fat and fine sauces and dressings, were short and broad, big in the middle, with oily hair and fine, pointed whiskers. The fats fed on polished rice and fish, like the Japanese people, were tough, active and energetic, but short and slender. Rats fed on the vegetarian diet of Madras in southern India were healthy, but hardly bigger or stronger or bolder than mice.

Along with these facts, related in Collier's Weekly, is the story of a Japanese dietitian who, finding that a certain species of fish was rich in vitamines and mineral salts, dried it and ground it into powder, and for years sprinkled the powder over the noon meal of a selected group of Japanese children. There was no other change attempted. The children so treated weighed several pounds more apiece, were inches taller and much freer from childhod ailments.

WHAT IS MACHINERY FOR?

Perhaps some of our machine-age troubles have been caused by a misunderstanding of what machinery is really for. We speak of it almost always as labor-saving, which in these days of serious unemployment throughout the civilized world seems to mean dispensing with labor. "If we could get it across," says one thoughtful observer of the modern scene, "that the advantage of the machine was in the increased speed with which it gets raw materials out of the ground and into consumption, and not in labor-saving, and thus keep everyone employed, even though at shorter hours and the same rate of pay, then we would not have to pay for these labor savings in a depression and could have fairly permanent prosperity."

It is in its role of quick and cost-saving producer of comforts and conveniences for humanity that the machine is desirable. The function is not so much to save human labor in providing goods, but rather to make and distribute more and more goods for everybody with no more labor than usual.

Reds Destroy Art Treasures in Tibet

Chengtu.—Ancient Tibetan art relics reported to be valued at millions of pounds sterling, have been wantonly destroyed by hordes of Communists and bandits infesting the borders of China and Tibet, and ravaging the provinces of Kokonor and Sikang.

Approximately three-quarters of the Lama temple in which these treasures were kept was pillaged and destroyed by the Red raiders, whose depredations have lost to the world works of art as ancient as the Tibetan hills.

The Wrong Murderer

By HUGH CLEVELY

SYNOPSIS: Instead of trapping Terence Mahony into an admission that he had murdered Vincent Little, as he had expected Inspector Kennedy has heard a fairly convincing denial. He is inclined to drop Terence rope—and Terence is perfecting a plan to capture and convict the real murderer who is Ambrose Lawson, head of a kidnapping and dope ring. Now Kennedy, another detective and Mahony are on their way to a vacant house where Ruth Fraser, friend of Mahony's, is hiding. Trying to help Terence, Ruth has got herself into trouble.

Chapter 36

EMPTY HOUSE

MAHONY was filled with foreboding. Number 518 St. John's Wood Road was the house where he had left Lawson's crooks tied up. Would Ruth be there when he and Inspector Kennedy arrived?

In a quarter of an hour they had arrived, had sprung up the steps, and found the front door slightly open. They went in; the house was silent.

Inspector Kennedy flashed his electric torch in front of him. The first room they entered was the drawing-room in which Mahony had left the two bound crooks. On the floor were pieces of the rope which Mahony had used to tie the two men. The rope had been cut.

Inspector Kennedy examined it, frowning. Sergeant Dawkins uttered and exclamation and stooped and picked something up from a corner.

"Hallo!" he said. "This looks as though she's been here."

He held out a woman's bag.

The bag was Ruth's; the contents proved that. But neither Ruth nor anybody else was in the house.

"I wonder what's happened to her?" said Inspector Kennedy in a worried tone. "Have you any ideas on the subject, Mahony?"

For a moment Mahony did not answer. His heart was full of fear for Ruth. So far as he could see, only one thing could have happened to her.

"I'm afraid she's fallen into the hands of the dope and kidnapping gang," he said in a low voice.

Inspector Kennedy nodded.

"Have you any idea where they could have taken her?" he asked.

"None at all," answered Mahony.

There was a pause. Then the Inspector asked another question.

"Where does Lawson come into all this? What is the meaning of that reference to him in her letter?"

"He's the head of the dope and kidnapping gang," answered Mahony briefly.

"What—Ambrose Lawson?" exclaimed the Inspector in an amazed voice. "Have you any proof of your statement?"

"Not a scrap," answered Mahony. "If you accused him, he'd only laugh in your face. But after you'd left the house he'd make arrangements to have you quietly murdered. Think this over. I told Bassett I was pretty sure Lawson was the head of the gang. I told Lee-Ramsden that I'd told Bassett. Lee-Ramsden immediately told Lawson. Within about an hour of Lee-Ramsden telephoning Lawson this morning Bassett's house was attacked by armed gunmen. Doesn't that strike you as peculiar?"

"Very peculiar," agreed Inspector Kennedy dryly.

He was silent for a time, thinking. Mahony's statement surprised him, but he was not altogether disinclined to believe it. Inspector Kennedy looked at Mahony very keenly.

"I'm not going to keep you any longer now, Mahony," he said in a slow, meaning voice. "I expect you'll have a lot to do tonight. But I'm letting you go on the condition that you report at my office at the Yard at ten in the morning, and tell me if you have any news of Miss Fraser. Is that a bargain?"

Mahony perfectly understood that the Inspector was giving him a chance to try to rescue Ruth. He did not blame the Inspector for the condition attached to that chance.

"That's a bargain," he said curtly.

"Good luck to you," said Inspector Kennedy.

WITH that Mahony left the house. When he had gone Sergeant Dawkins spoke to Inspector Kennedy.

"What do you reckon he'll do, sir?" he asked.

The Inspector shook his head.

"I don't know. Something pretty drastic if I'm any judge of character. I shouldn't be surprised if somebody gets hurt tonight."

But Lawson would probably not be easy to catch; he would be guarded. Mahony smiled grimly; he had thought of a way of catching him. Elsa had played one part tonight; now she could play another. But she need not know she was playing it.

At Marlborough Road Station he rang her up.

"This is Terence Mahony speaking," he said. "The police decided to let me go after all, thanks to the word you put in for me at our interview. I want to know if you'll do something for me?"

"Of course," she answered. She was eager to do something to try to make up for the harm she had done.

"I want to speak to Mr. Lawson tonight," went on Mahony. "Could you ring him up and ask him to come round and see you about eleven-thirty? But don't tell him I want to speak to him, or he won't come."

"Well . . . I'll do it if I can, but I don't know whether I shall be able to get hold of Mr. Lawson," answered Elsa. "He told me he was going out tonight, to some club—the Golden something or other. I'm terribly sorry. Though, if I ring up his house, perhaps his butler will be able to tell me where he's gone."

So Lawson had gone to the Golden Centipede. A thrill of exultation ran through Mahony.

"Never mind," he said. "I'll see him some other time."

With that he rang off, left the station, and took a taxi to his lodgings.

He spent twenty minutes at his lodgings disguising himself according to the directions which had been given to him by the assistant at Clarkford's. He spent five minutes carefully rubbing out the name on the Golden Centipede membership cards which he had taken from the two crooks that afternoon, and writing in another name. Then he set out for his appointment with his gang.

AT half past eleven he met them, as arranged, in a little quiet square not far from Jermyn Street. They arrived in two cars, the first car containing two men in evening dress, and the three huge bottles of champagne which Mahony had ordered, the other car containing the remaining four men clad in their rough sea going clothes. Mahony gave them all careful directions and they started for the Golden Centipede Club.

The Golden Centipede had two entrances, a front entrance in the courtyard, and a tradesmen's entrance in a quiet alley at the back of the club. The car containing Mahony, the two men in evening dress, and the biggest of the four other men, drove to the front entrance. The second car drove to the back entrance.

Inside the front entrance was a flight of stairs, which wound upwards to a landing on which were situated the men's and women's cloak-rooms. At the entrance to the men's cloak-room sat a large, uniformed commissionaire to see that non-members, unaccompanied by members, did not enter the club. From the landing another flight of stairs led upwards to the dance room and cocktail bar.

Mahony and the two men in evening dress, clutching their jeroboams of champaign, mounted the steps that led up to the first landing in a somewhat uncertain manner; they had the appearance of being rather drunk. The commissionaire frowned slightly; he stepped forward to challenge them.

"Are you a member, sir?" he demanded.

"Sure I'm a m-member," replied Mahony thickly. "Here'sh card."

He pulled out his faked membership card, held it in front of the commissionaire, and thrust it into his pocket again.

"Brought a couple of friendsh 'long for a drink," went on Mahony solemnly. "My birthday. Have to pay entrance fee and sign book, I suppose? Pay it for me, there'sh good fellow. Here you are."

He thrust a couple of pound notes into the commissionaire's hand.

"Very good, sir," he said.

Mahony and his companions went on up the stairs towards the dance floor. From the bottom of the stairs, by the front entrance, a voice hailed the commissionaire.

"Oi, mate!"

At the bottom of the stairs stood a large, rough-looking unshaven man. The commissionaire was indignant. With an air of immense dignity he descended the stairs.

"Wot d'you want?" he demanded. "This ain't no place for the likes of you. You 'op it."

"'Arf a minute, matey," he said in a conciliatory tone. "Just 'ave a good look at this."

As the commissionaire bent forward, a fist came upward, taking him fairly under the chin. The commissionaire slumped forward unconscious.

ALLEGERIC DISTURBANCES

One of the things some mothers cannot understand is why a children's specialist does not allow her child to use a certain brand of milk on which a neighbor's child has waxed strong and vigorous. The child of another neighbor is using soy bean milk with gratifying results and yet the doctor instructs her that ordinary pasteurized cow's milk is best suited to her youngster's needs. Similarly with other foods. Many children are not allowed orange or tomato juice whilst others are allowed to use either or both freely.

A few years ago the thought of giving bananas to children would have been too much for mothers and yet all over the country bananas are being used in hospitals and with private cases by children's specialists.

The explanation of why one youngster can safely eat one food and another can't is simply a matter of allergy, of sentiveness to food. Just as some adults cannot eat eggs, strawberries, tomatoes and other good foods without having attacks of hives, indigestion, head colds and other symptoms, so also is this allergic tendency found in children.

An ailment whose cause is often difficult to find is asthma. Sometimes the removal of tonsils, removing enlarged turbinate bones from the nose, or clearing up sinuses or ear conditions stops all asthmatic attacks. In other cases moving from one district to another or from one city to another prevents further attacks. The avoiding certain foods has also been found effective in preventing attacks of asthma.

It would thus appear that asthma is not due to any one cause and Dr. H. B. Adams in the Journal of Peniatrics classifies asthma as of three types, that is (a) those who inhale or breathe in certain substances or are sensitive to certain foods or other substances, (b) those with infection of some kind (teeth, tonsils, sinuses, ears), and (c) those with more than one, or a mixed cause.

You can readily see then that as there must be a cause for the asthma the search for this may take some time. Thus any infected part must first be removed as this will help the youngster's health even if the infection is not actually causing the asthma.

Then skin and other tests must be made with the various food substances and also with hair, fur, feathers and pollen. By the use of vaccines many of these cases will be relieved of their symptoms.

Youngsters must be handled or treated the same as adults when they are allegeric or oversensitive to various substances.

In The Meadow

By MARY GRAHAM BONNER

THERE was no sign of anyone at the cave. Willy Nilly called out: "Puddle Muddlers, where are you?" Christopher Columbus Crow came swooping down from his nest. "What has happened?" Willy Nilly asked. The farmer was looking exceedingly angry. Now what was this crow doing here, looking so wise and cawing in such an excited way? Christopher was speaking:

"Oh, Mrs. Quacko told the cow and her twins they were too big for her pond and Rip suggested that they might like to hide in the cave. Well, we all thought that a good idea because when you came back we could hear if the cow was to keep her twins or not before we let the farmer catch sight of them.

"We knew he'd come back with you. We were all in the cave but the cow almost got stuck getting in—and then she wanted to get out at once.

"She wanted to make sure she could get out, I suppose, and then Sweet Face made the mistake of talking about his meadow.

"Somehow she just felt she had to see that meadow. So she is there now with her twins and Rip and Sweet Face, and I told them I'd keep guard until I found out what you had done.

"I think I must have fallen asleep in my nest. I didn't hear you until you shouted. Is the cow to keep her twins?"

"She is," said Willy Nilly. "If the farmer hasn't entirely lost patience."

He very nearly had—but when he saw his beautiful cow and her twins he forgot his impatience, and when Willy Nilly told the cow the twins would not be taken from her she licked Willy Nilly's hands with her warm, rough, grateful tongue.

Monday—"Sweet Face's Plan"

When an automatic gas or electric domestic hot-water heater is used it should be remembered that all hot-water plumbing lines are a source of heat loss, and a major one, because of the considerable amount of pipe surface exposed to the air compared to the volume of heated water in the pipes. For this reason, just as it is important that the storage tank be insulated, it is also important that, wherever space will permit, the hot-water lines be insulated with any of the several good insulation materials now available on the market.

The Violin

(Benjamin W. Johnston)

Music has proved to be the hobby of many people—just any type of music. It sometimes acts as sort of a relief from their daily tasks, when they can sit down and listen to or play a selection of music. Then there are many persons who specialize in one kind of music or the playing of one type of an instrument. Such is the case of Benjamin W. Johnston, druggist, who is known to many of the older residents as an accomplished violinist.

Mr. Johnston began his study of the violin at the age of 14 upon the suggestion of his parents. For several years he received lessons from Jerome Williams and then studied for two years with Miss Sarah Crosby, who was considered rather a fine artist at that period.

His first public appearance was made at the once-a-month "exhibitions" that were held generally on Friday afternoons at the old Ulster Academy. These exhibitions were classified as part of the educational structure and were open to the general public. Later, as Mr. Johnston became more adept with the bow, he played for church recitals and lodge services, presenting many oratorios in conjunction with Prof. Snyder. He was in demand also at the old fashioned dances, playing for a series of them sponsored by a group known as the "Silvan Shore Camp Group," and held in Manner-chor Hall.

Two of the experiences which Mr. Johnston could recall most vividly as the highlights of his musical career were very amusing. The first had to do with an obligato he was playing at a church service for a well-known singer. Midway in a selection, the singer halted and then left the platform in such a hurry that he upset Mr. Johnston's music stand, causing hte violinist to turn to the organist and finish the recital from the organ score. The other occurrence came while he was playing an oratorio in St. Joseph's Church. The singer had a slight cold but had manager to get by in fine shape to a certain point, when his voice broke. He immediately stopped his singing, remarked, "Oh, h—, I can't sing", and sat down, leaving Mr. Johnston to carry on to the end of the piece.

Of late years, Mr. Johnston has made fewer public appearances as a violinist, giving most of his spare time now to other activities. However, he is still interested in his violin and once he is started, the druggist can spin many a tale of his playing in the years gone by. Those people who enjoyed their youth at the turn of the century can well remember when "Ben Johnston and his violin" were much in demand whenever good music was desired.

TALKS TO PARENTS

Too Old To Discipline

By BROOKE PETERS CHURCH

It is very hard for parents to accept the fact that their children are grown. Again and again one sees fathers and mothers giving grown sons and daughters orders which one might expect a little child to obey, but which only rouse resentment when the child is older.

One cannot correct the table manners of a boy of 15—at least not directly, and certainly not in public. A hint or suggestion when one is alone with him may help, if not, nothing will. All that is gained by the public reproof is surly rebellion.

Nor can one tell a girl of 15 to wash her hands and face. At that age, when a girl dreams of being a figure of romance, a sleeping beauty, waiting for the prince to come, it is humiliating to be recalled to reality in the presence of others in a more natural state of life girls were women and frequently mothers at fifteen. Biologically they are women, in spite of the position of dependence in which civilization keeps them today.

The best way to handle these difficult years when as grown people the children are still forced to submit to control, is to treat the youngsters with the tact and respect one would give adults. They should be talked to as equals, consulted on family matters, given real responsibilities, allowed as far as possible to manage their own lives.

Generally they respond to this kind of treatment where orders, scoldings and penalties have no effect. No one would tell an adult to take small mouthfuls or sit up straight, to brush his hair or clean his nails. If the child has not learned the need for these conventions before he reaches his teens, he will have to find it out for himself through experience.

Invisible Taxes

"We cannot buy a stitch of clothing without the government's taking in taxes a part of the money we pay out. We cannot buy an ounce of food at our grocery store without being taxed to support the government. We cannot go to a movie, or to a baseball game, or ride in an automobile without this invisible tax arm of government reaching out and taking a part of the money we spend."—Alf M. Landon at Buffalo, N. Y., August 26, 1936.

A Washington Daybook

By PRESTON GROVER

WASHINGTON — Two years ago there was much talk about the value of the states as experiment stations in which social, political or governmental ideas could be tried out without upsetting the whole national economy.

It was a reaction to NRA, AAA and other like agencies. In effect it was a suggestion that the pudding be tried out on the gardener before being served to the master.

Now comes Senator Lonergan of Connecticut, chairman of the senate campaign funds investigating committee, with a proposal seemingly ideal for a state test. He proposes that the government pay campaign costs of office-seekers.

"If contributions from all sources were prohibited and the government handled the problem," he said, "aspiring citizens, rich, moderately well off, and poor, would be on an equal basis."

Senator Lonergan, in summarizing arguments for it, said it would eliminate slush funds.

Called Hard For 'Out-ers'

BUT the idea stirs up no end of fury among opponents. Their belief is that it would tend to keep in office those already there and to give up all the quacks and quack ideas ever hatched in the spit-and-think grocery store stove-league.

Naturally, if the idea were adopted, each candidate for a certain office would be allowed a certain sum, the maximum necessary to let him show his wares. But how could an office aspirant compete with the man already in office? How could an "out-er" build-up an organization to compete with the following of an "in-er" with a basketful of politics, patronage?

Another problem along the same line which foes of the idea quickly pointed out was: How could an "out-er" overcome the effect of such non-political trips as were taken by President Roosevelt into the drought area and to the grass pastures conference? Within the states, governors, senators and other public figures take trips in campaign time, oftimes thinly disguising them as road inspection tours.

Borah's View

PERHAPS Senator Lonergan thought every man or woman with a political or social idea, new or used, should be permitted his day before the public, at public expense. Senator Borah once supplied an answer to that, while talking on a different matter.

He said any sound idea ultimately would get a hearing, then a following, then a champion.

Evans Is Elected To Church Court

Local Presbyterian Churchman to Try New York Elder—New York Synod Condemns Teachers' Oath.

Robert D. Evans, Jr., 34 Franklin street, was elected yesterday by the Presbyterian Synod of New York to membership on a special judicial commission, to try an elder in a New York church for disobeying an order to retire from the Independent Board of Foreign Missions of the denomination.

The Independent Board was set up by the Rev. J. Gresham Machan of Philadelphia. The General Assembly of the church, meeting in Syracuse last May, Mr. Evans a member, found Dr. Machen and his associates guilty and ordered them suspended from the Presbyterian ministry. Most of them were later deposed and their names stricken from the role.

Imbrie Heads Commission

The case which Mr. Evans will help decide is practically the last one to be settled. The Presbytery of New York did not act against Elder George Bennett of the Fort Washington Church so the General Assembly ordered the Synod of New York to try him. It will comply through this judicial commission elected with power. Another member of this commission is the Rev. Charles K. Imbrie of the First Church, Newburgh. Dr. Imbrie will also be the convener of the commission for the trial.

Mr. Evans is an elder in the First Presbyterian Church of this city, whose minister, the Rev. Goodrich Gates, was a delegate to the Synod this week. The nomination was made by the stated clerk of the Synod, Dr. Robert Hastings Nichols of Auburn Seminary.

Dr. Gates was appointed to the committee to study records of the Presbyteries to ascertain whether or not church proceedings of the previous year conformed to the church and civil laws.

One of the highlights of the Synod's gathering was a spirited debate over adoption of the report of the Committee on Social Service. Referring to the coming election the report said "The Church cannot be indifferent to the way in which Christians make political choices of great importance.

"Party loyalty should not make it impossible for us to approach new issues with an open mind. We must avoid the bitterness which destroys the truth, indulges in whispering campaigns and pins false labels upon opponents; the sincere Christian has a peculiar obligation to search his own heart in order to make certain that his political professions are not a cloak for personal economic interest or the interests of a small group."

Free Speech "Fundamental"

The report warned of "danger in a blind belief that our form of government will automatically continue" and called all denials a free assembly and expression the indications of a "dictator philosophy." Teachers' oaths were therefore condemned. The jailing of the Communist presidential candidate in Terre Haute to prevent his speaking over the radio also was mentioned, with the comment: "Free speech means nothing at all unless it means freedom for those with whom the majority differs. The Church, which is concerned not with man's transient political and economic opinions but with basic considerations of justice and good-will, must reaffirm at every point this fundamental human right."

A minority sought to have these particulars eliminated from the report, "leaving only vague generalities," but the Synod voted overwhelmingly to retain and adopt the entire report as submitted.

The Rev. James N Armstrong, Jr., pastor of Rondout Church, attended the Synod for two days as member of the committee on National Missions Voting delegates besides Dr. Gates were the Rev. Devello S. Haynes of Highland and the Rev. William J. McVey of Freedom Plains, the moderator of North River Presbytery.

Dr. Gates will give a brief report on the Synod's work in the local church tomorrow morning.

Romans Had A Board For A Voting Machine

By JOHN SELBY.

New York (AP).—Interview with the Columbia Encyclopedia, not precisely in encyclopedic verbiage.:

"What was the earliest substitute for the modern and somewhat frightening voting machine?

"Those wooden ballots the Romans used in 139 B. C.," said the Encyclopedia, turning a leaf and adjusting its margins neatly. "These were provided according to the Gambinian law, so that all a Roman noble had to do was to get his toga out of the draft and drop a slab of wood into a box."

"And do you remember what they were voting for in 139 B. C.?"

"Certainly, I'm quite sure. It was called the Assembly of Centuries."

"I suppose you know of other curious election machinery, too?"

"Oh, indeed. The Greeks as I'm sure you know, used black and white balls just like college fraternities. Sometimes they used shells, marked and unmarked. Sometimes even potsherds."

"And what's a potsherd?"

"My, my. How low the standard of journalism is nowadays. Why a potshead is a broken piece of crockery. Naturally."

"Thanks. And perhaps you could say something about the secret ballot we're supposed to have in November? You know, just any little thing."

The Encyclopedia opened itself with a bang. "Yes. I suppose you think the secret ballot's something new. Well, it's as old as the hills. Some hills.

"It was used in India before 300 B. C. Even some of your American Indians used it, and the College of Cardinals has used a secret ballot in papal elections since 1562.

Massachusetts stopped voting out loud in 1634, when the general court elected a governor with paper ballots. And the American English colonies were the first to elect representatives that way.

"And if you want to know, they authorized the voting machine first in 1892. In New York."

That was all.

SEEKS TO HAVE HER MARRIAGE DISSOLVED.

Olga Olsen Svennevick of Samsonville has made application to the supreme court for a dissolution of her marriage to John B. Svennevick on the grounds that he has absented himself for a period of more than five years. Supreme Court Justice Schirick has granted an application to serve the defendant by publication of service in a Sullivan county paper. Prior to living in Ulster county the parties lived in Brooklyn.

In the application to the court for leave to serve notice by publication the plaintiff states that the marriage took place on September 22, 1922, at Jersey City, N. J., and that at present she has custody of the two children.

The complaint alleges that on December 15, 1920, the defendant left his home at 540 60th street, Brooklyn, and has not returned home since. He was a carpenter by trade. In 1927 it is charged the defendant absented himself from home for four days and on his return made a statement to plaintiff that "I can do without you but I can't do without liquor." He then left but in December of 1930 the petitioner says that she located him in Seaview Hospital on Staten Island where he was ill. At that time he told her he had been supplied with passage to Norway and was about to leave. The petitioner says she now believes he is dead. LeRoy Lounsberry appears for the petitioner.

Prepared by McCall's Magazine For The Freeman.

And now we're tired of the cheap print of "Hope" or "The End of the Road"—just as we became dissatisfied with the colored enlargement of grandfather and, before that, the calendar picture. Some of us stopped having any pictures, because we wanted originals and they cost too much.

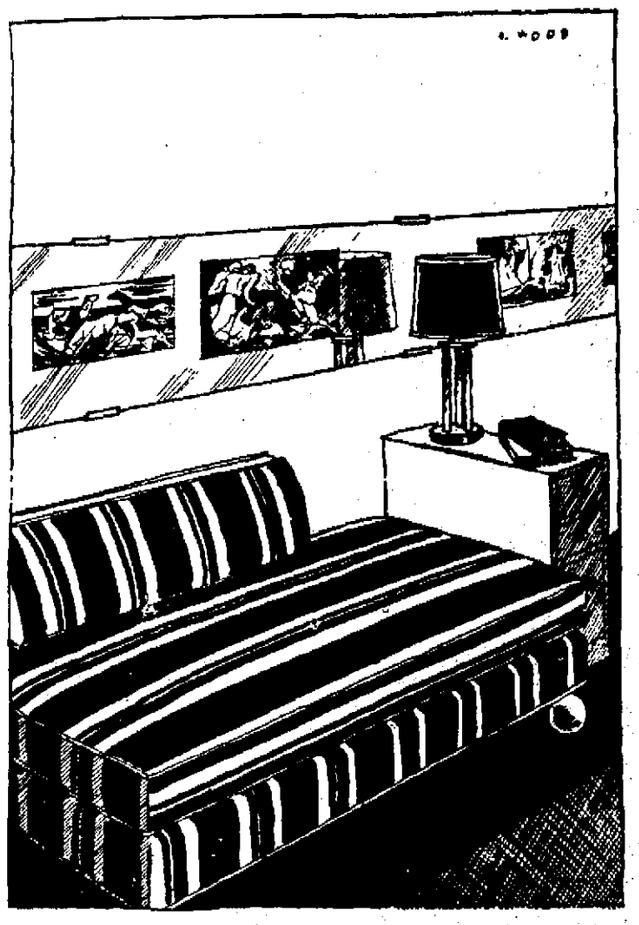

Now we can have what we want—real original etchings, woodcuts and lithographs by leading artists like Rockwell Kent, Miguel Covarrubias and Wanda Gag. And at the price of a book—only $2.75.

Do you like your art old-fashioned? Or do you prefer the modern school, the realistic or the abstract? Or perhaps you are one of those rare souls who thinks that only surrealism is smart. Whatever your taste, there is at least one picture to please it.

There are pictures for every room—scenes for the living room or pictures of cats, flowers and horses which express the owner's hobby. For the boy's room, there are boat pictures, "Wild Horses," by Frank Mechau, Jr., "Oil Country," by Louis Lozowick, or Benton Spruance's football lithograph, "A Short Gain." Girls Will like Raphael Sayers' "Dancers Resting." While "Runaways," by Nura, is charming for the children's room.

Children will gain most, perhaps from the new home picture development. They can gain a knowledge and appreciation of American art by living with it which they can never get from school or museum. Of many origins and from every part of the country, each artist brings a very definite contribution to art understanding.

The average house does not have to limit itself to one or two pictures—they are so cheap that they may be changed from time to time. They are so interesting they need only simple frames.

HORSES, FOOTBALL, BOATS

These scenes and many others by leading artists are available now to brighten the home—for a good picture cost no more today than a book.

GARDEN NOTES

Multiplier, or potato onions as they are sometimes called, give the first young onions in spring. A few bulbs put in this fall will give you a crop before the onion sets can get into action. They are perfectly hardy.

Being one of the oldest of garden flowers with a recorded history, the tulips have an interesting background. The oldest of the garden types are the breeders. No one knows from what native species they came. But they were grown by the Dutch breeders of the 16th century.

One of the few facts well established about plant growth is that plants take from the soil the building materials they need only in liquid form. So we water our gardens and find that the soil which is retentive of water in just the right way seems to encourage plant growth.

Crocuses are often planted in the grass and give a beautiful effect in this manner but as the grass must be moved before they can mature their leaves they are short lived and need frequent replacing. They are cheap enough, however, so that this can be done. In the garden where they can ripen their foliage, an essential to the permanence of a bulb, they are permanent investments.

Even that combination which so many good gardeners regard with aversion—bright red with brilliant yellow—is a welcome sight on a spring day. Mixtures of tulips are always interesting, even where they contain all classes, including the most vivid Cottage varieties. And mixtures of Darwins are especially pleasing, because most of the varieties in this family have their colors softened by an overlay of white.

Darwin tulips were an introduction late in the last century, supposed to be hybrids of breeder tulips, but the origin was kept secret by the introducers. They are characterized by soft pastel colors, always with white overbloom, including a remarkably complete color range, but lacking entirely so far, good yellows.

What happens scientifically when a woman gets a permanent wave? An English scientist explains the mystery. The straight hair is stretched on one side, by heat and pressure and other ingenious forms of torture, until it is bent over in the position desired. The process causes "a breakdown in the molecular structure of the hair."

MANY PERENNIALS ARE BEST PLANTED IN FALL

Fall planting is best for many perennials. If you look over the list below you may find on it some subjects which you have tried to grow in the spring or summer with little success.

Phlox decussata, hardy primulas, dictamnus, aconitum, ucanthus, adonis clematis and trollius.

These flowers have extremely hard seeds and if planted in the spring or summer they are slow to germinate, often refusing to grow for a full year. By sowing them in the fall and leaving them to the action of the frost good germination is usually obtained the following spring.

Advanced gardeners sow these seeds in either flat or shallow wooden boxes or pans which are shallow flower pots. The receptacle should be filled with good potting soil, and the seeds barely covered. It is important that some method of labeling the receptacles be used so that you know what was sown, since even with fall sowing one may have to wait six months or a year for seedlings to appear.

If you have a cold frame vacant set the receptacle in it and allow it to be exposed to the action of the weather. If without a cold frame, set the flat or pan near the house under the eaves, and let it alone until spring. If seedlings appear in the spring they should be transplanted into more roomy quarters just as soon as they show true leaves, since they will suffer much from crowding otherwise.

How to Force Bulbs For Indoor Bloom

The most colorful indoor flowers are produced from the garden bulbs, forced into blooming months before they would naturally do so in the spring.

If one wishes to force tulips, daffodils or hyacinths in earth, from three to five months are required, depending upon the variety. Early tulips should be chosen, and one of the forcing varieties of daffodils, although almost any of the hyacinths will do nicely.

The first step is to place them in pots. So-called "pans", shallow pots used for bulbs, are suitable; deeper pots may be used. The soil should be good potting soil, a mixture of leaf mold, sand and loam, such as florists use, and unless one knows how to prepare it it may be purchased from florists. Place the bulb so that its top is half an inch below the surface of the soil.

The first step in forcing is to induce the formation of roots. The soil should be well watered, and then the pot placed where it will have a cool temperature, just above freezing.

A pit dug in the garden protected from surface water and well drained, so water will not stand in it, is a good place. The pots may be placed in the pit and covered with leaves, ashes and sand or even loose soil. The purpose is to reproduce conditions, as nearly as possible, under which bulbs form roots when planted in the ground. Freezing will not injure the hardly bulbs, but will delay growth and make them force less easily.

In an outdoor pit no additional watering is necessary. If storage is indoors the soil should be kept from drying out excessively. Root action should follow and when top growth begins the bulbs may be brought to the light or may be kept in the outdoor pit and so retarded until they are wanted.

After being brought to light, which should be all the light it is possible to give, the bulbs should be kept in a temperature of 60 degrees until stems, leaves and flower buds are forced. In the home, this means to keep them out of overheated rooms, preferably in a porch or sun parlor, where windows may be opened for ventilation and coolness. After the buds are formed, a temperature of 70 degrees will bring out the flower, and if haste is needed, a higher temperature will produce it.

Too high temperature will result in spindly growth and may prevent any flowers. Air is as important as light. Success in forcing bulbs depends entirely on the points here enumerated, and unless one is willing to pay strict attention to details, it is better not to undertake it. But if the rules are carefully followed by one who understands something of plant growth, very fine flowers may be grown.

Use a teaspoonful of good complete plant food with every square foot of soil you use to pot Indoor plants. Mix thoroughly, and after a month use the same amount spread on top and wet down.

If you have a south window you will appreciate the sparkle of color you will get early in the spring or late winter from a planting of a few snowdrops where they can be seen

MODES of the MOMENT

Collapsible Hats For Traveling

Here is a hat which can travel either on the head or in the bag. A triangular inset, extending down the front of the crown to form the brim, makes it possible to fold the hat almost as "flat as a pancake," and tuck it into the luggage. Jean King designs it of black felt, hand-sewn, and trims it with a rose-beige grosgrain ribbon.

Doughnuts And Halloween

Doughnuts and Halloween are almost synonymous, but there is practically no confection which requires more care on the part of the maker. For doughnuts are fried in deep fat, and that is a cooking process which must be done "just right" if the food so prepared is to be digestible and crisp rather than heavy in texture and greasy to the taste.

Mrs. Robert J. Service of Stone Ridge, advisory committee woman of district 5-A of the Dairymen's League Cooperative Association, sends us an "extra special" doughnut recipe, however, which she says will turn out as light and tasty a batch of Halloween goodies as you ever ate in your life.

"Doughnuts should rise quickly to the top of the fat," Mrs. Service explains. "When they are brown on one side turn them on the other, but avoid turning more than once. That is part of the secret of making good doughnuts. The other lies in the temperature of the fat, which must be kept uniform at about 370 degrees F. If it gets too cold the doughnuts will absorb some of the fat and become greasy. If the fat is allowed to heat up too much, the doughnuts will brown before they have risen sufficiently and will, of course, be soggy and heavy."

The recipe which Mrs. Service contributes makes three dozen doughnuts and is as follows:

Doughnuts

- 4½ cups flour
- 4 teaspoons baking powder
- 1 teaspoon salt
- ¾ teaspoon nutmeg
- 1 cup sugar
- 2 eggs
- 1 cup milk
- 1 tablespoon melted butter
- Deep fat

Sift dry ingredients, except sugar. Beat eggs, add sugar, milk and melted butter. Add to dry ingredients and stir well. The dough will be rather soft, but the results will justify any difficulty in handling. Roll to ½-inch thickness and cut with floured cutter. Fry in deep fat. Turn only once. Drain on paper. Makes 3 dozen. Delicious with a glass of cold milk.

Mrs. Rose K. Witter is in charge of the program "Appreciation of Citizenship." Mrs. Otis B. Smith and Mrs. Nicholas Hogeboom are the hostesses.

Tri-Hi Harvest Dance

The harvest dance held at the Y. W. C. A. last evening by the Tri-Hi Club was attended by about 45 couples. The hall was decorated in keeping with the fall season, corn stalks, red, yellow and green shades for the lights and a real scarecrow. Ray Randall and his orchestra furnished the music for dancing. There was an entertainment during the evening. Miss Edwina Schultz accompanied by the orchestra sang two popular numbers. Carl Studer and Irving Rose also did a very clever skit.

Miss Jean DuBois acted as general chairman. The decorating of the hall was done by Miss Elizabeth Gill, Miss Ruth Brinnier, Miss Jean Wright, Miss Ruth Britt, Miss Virginia Luedtke and Miss Eleanor France. Refreshments were in charge of Miss Mary Krenglowskie, Miss Doris Kelts, Miss Dolores Kelts, Miss Fay Smith, and Miss Alice Smith. The chaperones for the dance were Miss Marion Healy, Miss Florence Baltz, Richard Whiston, Miss Jean Estey, Mrs. George N. Wood, Miss Catherine Millard and Miss Lillian Herdman

Legion Victory Ball on Wednesday, Nov. 11

The American Legion Victory Ball, scheduled for Wednesday evening, November 11, at the Municipal Auditorium, promises to be one of the most colorful of the coming social season. The ex-service organization has always been famous for staging a highly successful event but judging from the arrangements already announced, this year's affair bids for the all-time high in the local entertainment and social field

Two famous orchestras have been engaged. Jack Linton and his Clinton Ford Pavilion band and Charlie Barnet with his Glen Island Casino aggregation will be on hand to furnish the highly popular type of dance rhythm. Barnet's engagement is a feather in the cap of the Legion committee for he has been delighting smart Westchester county society gatherings during the past summer.

Eight all-star vaudeville acts have also been engaged through the agency of Harry Shea, whose reputation for bringing high-class talent to the Auditorium is well-known The concert, played by the Linton orchestra, will start promptly at 8 p m The entertainment will begin at 8 30 and continue until 10 p m. From then on until closing time, the bands will alternate in furnishing the dance music.

The Legion balls are also well-known for their color The decorating committee have an unusual plan for supplying the proper atmosphere and an exceptionally good time is planned.

Miss J Virginia Vient and Miss Luella J Vient of Neponsit Beach Hospital, Rockaway Park, N Y, and Charles R Vient of Los Angeles, Cal, were the guests of Mr and Mrs A J Huestis, 53 Lucas avenue, last Sunday On Friday of this week Mr Vient left by plane for his home in Los Angeles.

Farewell Surprise Party

On Tuesday evening a large number of friends gathered at the home of Mr and Mrs William Theinert at 10 Staples street and tendered them a farewell surprise party.

On returning home from a theatre party Mr and Mrs Thinert found their home beautifully decorated with streamers and flowers, and a group of friends gathered to greet them. The evening was happily spent in dancing, singing and games.

At 11 o'clock the guests were ushered into the dining room, where covers were laid for thirty and a delicious supper served. Mr. Carson acted as toastmaster and many of Mr. and Mrs. Theinert's friends were called upon to speak. All expressed deep sorrow at losing their friends.

At an early hour the guests departed all wishing Mr. and Mrs Theinert the best of luck. They expect to leave Kingston the early part of next week to make their home on Staten Island. Those attending the party were Mr. and Mrs. Theinert, Gerda, Christa and Richard Theinert, Mr. and Mrs. Sleight, Mr. and Mrs Braumeisen, Mr. and Mrs Otto, Mr and Mrs. Kandsia, Mr and Mrs Kuhne, Mr. and Mrs. Taylor, Mr and Mrs Kastner, Mr. and Mrs Carson, Mr. and Mrs. Luedtke, Mr. and Mrs Kiwus, Mrs. K. ## Simpson's Record Merits Re-election

Mr. Simpson served his town as a member of the board of supervisors and his conduct in that office drew public attention to his ability and he was nominated as the Republican candidate for county clerk in 1930 and at the fall election was elected to the office On January 1, 1931, he assumed the duties of that office His knowledge of public affairs gained through his service as supervisor of the town of Shandaken from 1928 to 1930 has given to the county of Ulster an excellent administration and at the same time he had effected economies in the office which have saved the taxpayers considerable money and he has also put the public records of the office in a most excellent shape.

Attorneys and citizens who have transacted business at the county clerk's office recently have been loud in their praise of the manner in which valuable public records have been protected and cared for. Among the more important documents which Mr Simpson has devised means of preserving are the maps on file in the office. In the past these maps have been rolled upon sticks and were subject to damage and loss Under the supervision of Mr Simpson these priceless documents have all been mounted in books, making the records more accessible and at the same time protecting them from damage and the possibility of their being removed from the office and lost.

A vast amount of work has been done in the re-indexing of civil actions prior to 1906 This work has been highly comended by attorneys

National records prior to 1900 have been indexed and many other valuable documents have been placed in such condition as to be more readily examined and studied

When Mr Simpson first assumed office several of the departments were weeks behind with work A large volume of business had swamped the recording force and papers left for record could not be reached and copied for days Mr. Simpson immediately set about to remedy this condition With the regular force of clerks he accomplished the task of bringing this work up to date and the result was that deeds mortgages and other papers are now recorded the same day they are filed and within four or five days are ready to be returned to the person who filed them. This work was done without the addition of extra clerks

In addition to efficiently conducting the duties of the office Mr Simpson has effected certain economies in the office. One of the economies is the matter of publishing the Supreme Court calendars This alone has saved the taxpayers several hundreds of dollars Under this system one calendar is printed for the first term each year and for the succeeding terms that year supplements are published.

Throughout the office various economies have been made which in the aggregate save the taxpayers a considerable sum.

Personal Attention.

During his service as county clerk, Mr Simpson has constantly given his personal attention to the multitude of details of the office His service has been characterized by remarkable and unfailing courtesy and willingness to oblige not only attorneys, who have almost daily contact with his office, but jurors, laymen and all who have occasion to visit the office During the trial terms of court Mr. Simpson has acted personally as clerk of the Supreme Court County Court and Naturalization Court with the exception of a few days when his duties in the office have prevented his attendance During the time when his personal attention was required at the office the duties of Clerk of the Court have been most competently taken over by Deputy County Clerk Charles R O Connor

The work of the county clerk's office is highly specialized and a man unacquainted with it, no matter how well qualified in other directions, would be lost and more than that, the work of the office would be seriously hampered. Experience is the surest guarantee of efficiency and Mr Simpson has shown by his past record that he can handle the job in an efficient, intelligent and satisfactory manner.

James A. Simpson was born at Phoenicia, a son of Jay H. Simpson, and after attending the public school of the village he studied at Ulster Academy in Kingston. At Drexel Institute in Philadelphia he studied electrical engineering and for a time was employed by a large electrical concern in Philadelphia. Just prior to the World War he returned to Phoenicia and assumed management of the general store, which is at present conducted by Simpson Brothers

At the outbreak of the World War he enlisted and went overseas with the Third Division. He participated in the battles of Chateau Thierry, Belleau Woods, Second Battle of the Marne, St Mihiel and the Meuse-Argonne. At the close of the war he returned to Phoenicia and resumed management of the store

In 1923 Mr. Simpson was elected supervisor of his town He served his township so well that he was re-elected three times and resigned as supervisor of the town of Shandaken to become county clerk in 1931.

In the Board of Supervisors Mr. Simpson was named on several important committees including the Committee on Accounts of Superintendent of Poor, Committee on Equalization and Insurance and others

Active in Public Affairs.

Throughout his entire career Mr Simpson has taken an active interest in public affairs. As supervisor of his town he served the town well and in addition he took an active part in village affairs outside his official duties He took an active part in the regulation of the flow of the Esopus Creek from th entrance of the Shandaken tunnel to the Ashokan reservoir. When the City of New York diverted the Schoharie waters through the Shandaken tunnel into the Esopus he was one who battled with other sportsmen to have the flow of the water regulated so as not to completely destroy fishing in the Esopus creek which was one of the finest trout streams in the country prior to New York's entrance on the scene

The re-election of James A Simpson as county clerk of Ulster county means a continuation of the present efficient, economical and courteous conduct of that office and his re election in November is assured.

READING PALMS IS GAY FUN

"You are going to become famous and very rich," said Elsie, as she studied Tommy's palm. "Perhaps we had better get your autograph now."

"Goody for me," said Tommy, "but do you mean it?"

"Certainly I do. This little star on the Mount of Jupiter indicates you are very ambitious and you have the makings of a big success within you. Of course, there is a little matter of hard work, too. But you won't mind that because your Mount of Saturn indicates you take yourself very seriously. The Mount of Apollo shows you love beautiful things and the Mount of Mercury shows you have commercial aptitude, inventiveness and lightning thought."

New Booklet Shows You

All the little lines in a hand, the signs—squares, twin lines, islands, the little stars—and the color and texture of the hands, indicate different meanings to a reader of palms Those who know palmistry are always the most popular persons in groups or at a party. You can quickly learn how to read palms through the new 40-page booklet, PALMISTRY AND ASTROLOGY. The illustrations and diagrams show you what to look for in a palm and what each line, mount, star, shape of hands and fingers indicate as to the person's character and disposition. Send for this booklet tonight It will not only be mighty interesting, but what you learn about both palmistry and astrology will always be a source of entertainment to yourself and friends.

Send 15c for our booklet, PALMISTRY AND ASTROLOGY, to Kingston Daily Freeman, Home Institute, 109 West 19th street, New York, N. Y. Write plainly your name, address and the name of booklet.

New Paltz Normal School Activities

New Paltz, Oct. 23.—Betty Jennings, Ginger Walker, Dorothy Langue, Conny Schoonmaker and Dotty Langue spent the week-end at their sorority house, the Theta Phi.

Shirley Pearson is ill at her home.

Clionian Sorority were guests of Theta Phi last Wednesday night.

Miss Bornstein is the new hostess at the Pi Sigma Lambda Sorority house.

The intersorority prom will be held on November 14. The committee in charge has been chosen as follows: General chairman, Marion Hanney; orchestra, Peg Kammerlen; decorations, Gwendolyn Gould; refreshments, Jillamay Dilworth; bids, Madlyn Roy; publicity, Miriam Danahy; miscellaneous, Winifred Luchs.

The Outing Club will sponsor a costume Halloween party in the Normal school gymnasium on the evening of October 31, from eight to eleven o'clock. Outing Club members and boys are invited. The last club meeting was held at the home of Miss Deane.

The senior service dance will be held November 19.

The Epsilon Delta Chi held their regular meeting on Thursday in the social room at 7 o'clock. Melba Smith and Dominick Lazzaro were welcomed as new members. Mrs. Long was the speaker and used for her topic "Progressive Education." Plans for the activities of the society were discussed and refreshments were served.

Sorority rushing began on Monday October 19, and lasted until Wednesday evening, October 21. Silence period is to last from the 21st until context parties are held. The period of silence is to be lifted only on the evening of the respective sorority's rush parties. During the three days of rushing the various sororities entertained three groups each day, one limited group for luncheon One group for tea and one group for dinner and evening, the rush parties are scheduled as follows: Agonian sorority, Thursday, October 22; Pi Sigma Lambda Sorority, Sunday, October [illegible]; Artemis Sorority, Monday, October 26, Theta Phi Sorority, Tuesday, October 27; Arathusa Sorority, Wednesday, October 28; Clionian Sorority, Thursday October 29.

Members of the faculty were prominent at the New York State Educators Convention at Lake Placid, they were: Miss Grace MacArthur, who was chairman of a group discussing "Current Problems in the social life of the school" Professor Edgar V. Beebe was a member of the groups discussing "Current Problems in the classroom," while Miss Edna B. Taylor and Miss Bertha Bennett were reporters for two other groups. Professor Benjamin H. Matteson is on the executive committee of the board.

Saturday night the Arethusa-Delta Kappa dance was held in the gym. The stage was partly concealed by drapes leaving the center open where Ray Randall's orchestra was seated. Leaves and branches were used in the ceiling decoration and the lights shining through made a very beautiful sight, like the moonlight shining through real trees. The windows were also decorated with autumn leaves. Entertainment consisted of a piano solo by Jack Granitz, a song by Billie Schermerhorn and one by Harold Darling, a duet by Eleanor Scharfenberg and Eunice Roberts, a trumpet solo by Charlie Helmes. Robert Prins acted as master of ceremonies. Refreshments were served.

The Outing Club is sponsoring the following program of activities. Canoeing was enjoyed at 3:30 on October 21 on the Wallkill river, supper at the Glen October 23 at 4 o'clock, moonlight hike to Mohonk October 31. Friday night, October 30, a Halloween party in the gym.

The Riding Club enjoyed a supper ride to the Glen on Thursday.

Miss Mary Gray Deane has classes scheduled after school in order to fulfill the special activity program. On Monday at 3:15, freshman hockey; Tuesday, archery; Thursday, freshman soccer at 4:15. Wednesday, upperclassmen soccer at 4 15; Thursday, archery.

New Paltz Vandals football team won its first game of the season on Saturday with the Stroudsburg Frosh on the New Paltz field with the score of 4-0.

Plans have been made to have the Junior entertain them next week.

Unbiased Opinons

Editorial from Middletown (Orange County) Times-Herald of October 9th, 1936

AN ISSUE IN ULSTER

In Ulster County the political contest this year apparently is centered on the re-election of District Attorney Cleon B. Murray of Ellenville. The issue is reminiscent of contests in Orange, the question of rotation in office and whether experience counts for anything in the qualifications of an important functionary in public service.

Mr. Murray offers his success and experience as reasons why he should be elected for a third term. His adversary thinks he has held office long enough, an argument made against every official who has been in service long enough to become fully acquainted with the duties he is required to discharge.

Unless Ulster abandons a wise custom, however, that argument is not likely to make much impression. Since 1896, a period of forty years, Ulster has had beside Mr. Murray only four District Attorneys, Judge Stephan, Judge Cantine, Judge Cunningham and Judge Traver. All of these, with the exception of Judge Stephan, served three terms before they were promoted in public service by ballot of the people.

In each case their experience was a prime factor in re-election. So it should be in Mr. Murray's He has been an able official, a prosecutor on the order of our own Mr. Hirschberg. He has vigorously prosecuted offenders in the categories of major crime, with an excellent record of success He also has competently handled other items of business devolving on the county's chief law officer.

It is history recent enough to be retained in popular memory that the District Attorney of Ulster was an important functionary during construction of the Ashokan Dam and aqueduct for New York city. There is another water project of as great magnitude under way for the metropolis within the confines of Ulster, and Mr. Murray logically relies on the assumption that the people of his county will prefer to retain in office a man of his experience in the law business of the public.

Editorial from THE LIBERTY REGISTER, Liberty, Sullivan County, New York, Thursday, Oct. 15, 1936

THE LONG AND SHORT OF IT.

Two of the best known avenues of attacking political candidates are to charge inexperience on the one hand and too long tenure of office on the other, and in Sullivan's neighboring county of Ulster this year there is notable employment of the latter in an effort to unseat District Attorney Cleon B Murray who seeks a third term as prosecutor .....

District Attorney Murray is not running in Sullivan, and disposition of his case may well be left to Ulster—which undoubtedly will show its usual good sense by retaining him in office as a tried and trusted guardian against criminals—but the fight against him, as against others in office, raises an interesting issue .....

Where the public servants are slightly different, of a judicial character or in criminal prosecution—as Mr. Murray is—their claim to reelection is even more compelling than that of legislators, and the electorate that turns them out of office "because they have been in too long" does nothing but cheat itself ...

Mr. Murray, in Ulster, has won the right to be kept in office, a highly specialized one .....

HONORS FOR ELLENVILLE MAN

One of the outstanding candidates that Ulster county voters will have the privilege of voting for next month is Cleon Murray of Ellenville, who has been renominated for the office of District Attorney. Mr. Murray may be a "small town man," but he has made good and has the support of everybody who knows him. A vote for Mr. Murray is a vote for honesty and efficiency. He is respected and honored not only by his Ellenville neighbors but by his friends in Kingston and throughout the county of Ulster. Don't leave Murray off your list on Election Day.

"utterly untrue" and "deceitful villification" statements he attributed to an unnamed member of "my opponent's immediate family" that Kansas school children were "deprived of educational advantages." Neither the governor nor his aides elaborated on the "immediate family" reference.

Wearing a hat, the candidate asked indulgence of the crowd—estimated by Police Sergeant H. L. Siege at 10,000—because of his cold.

"I wear the same size hat as a presidential candidate as I did when I came down here as an oil man," he added.

"Where's your old hunting hat, Alf?" a voice shouted.

"My wife took it away from me," Landon rejoined and the crowd laughed.

Change Time for Diphtheria Clinic

Dr. L. E. Sanford, city health officer, stated today that it had been found necessary to change the time for holding the series of free diphtheria clinics and that instead of Monday afternoon the clinic would be held Tuesday afternoon from 3 to 4 o'clock in the city hall. Parents who desire to have their children immunized from the disease should bring them to the clinic Tuesday. Where desired children will also be vaccinated against smallpox.

COTTEKILL.

Cottekill, Oct. 24.—Mrs. Uriah Barringer returned home Sunday from Philmont, where she spent two weeks with her daughter, Mrs. Tillie Sutton, and family.

Mrs. Dora DeForest arrived Saturday to spend some time with her niece, Miss Retha Wilson.

Arthur Keator of Kingston visited his father, Garten Keator, a few days this week.

Several people of this village attended the union services at the Stone Ridge Reformed Church last Sunday evening.

The regular monthly meeting of the Ladies' Aid Society will be held Thursday afternoon, November 5, at the home of the Rev. and Mrs. Harold Hoffman in Stone Ridge at 1:30 o'clock.

So far, they don't know much about the "affair" Simpson. They know "something special" is up, because for the first time in history employes of the County Council have been banned from the courtroom.

But little or no information about Mrs. Simpson, her friendship with King Edward, the marital rift that followed her yachting cruise with Edward and his guests on the Adriatic Sea, has sifted through the censorship the British daily press has imposed on itself.

Union Party To Aid Republicans

Albany, N. Y., Oct. 24 (AP)—Barred from the state ballot by a court of appeals ruling, the Union Party, through its state chairman, Albert T. Gruskin, made plans today to throw its support to the Republican state ticket.

Gruskin announced that his party would back the Republican state candidates by the "write in" route. A meeting of the executive committee next week, he added, would decide what was to be done about the national candidates.

WEST SHOKAN

West Shokan, Oct. 24—Judge and Mrs. Henry Winchell of Sunny Cliff Farm thoroughly enjoyed a well earned day off on Wednesday by taking a trip through southern Ulster.

Farmer Charles Eckert of Krumville road has just put in two acres of winter wheat.

Geraldine Wickham of Olive Bridge, together with Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Boice and son, Harold, of Hurley, have left on a week's trip to Windsor, Maryland, for a visit with their aunt, Mrs. Frederick Keeler. The sojourners also will visit Washington, D. C., and nearby places of historical interest.

Wednesday afternoon Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Boice of Clinton, N. Y., accompanied by his sister, Mrs. Emma Fetter, also Mrs. E. E. Henry of Kingston, called on Mrs. Chase Davis of West Shokan heights.

Donald Bishop is employed in Catskill.

Teamster Julian Eckert hauled firewood two days this week for the winter requirements of Abram Constable.

Preaching services will be held at the West Shokan Community Church at the usual time of 10:30 o'clock Sunday morning.

William Bender and son, William, of Mettcahonts, have completed a two-coat aluminum paint job on the roof of the Davis farm residence of West Shokan heights.

Mrs. Homer Sheldon of Acorn Hill had the misfortune to fall recently at her home and fracture several ribs.

Mr. and Mrs. George Van Kleeck, of Samsonville heights, were among recent pleasant callers at Sunny Cliff wayside farm.

Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Lartz and daughters, Geraldine and Lorraine, also Mrs. Brooks North, all of the South Road, recently called to see their sister, Mrs. Homer Sheldon of Acorn Hill, who is slowly recovering from her fall.

Edward Avery is industriously attending the exacting Maple Dell Farm duties during the absence of his partner, Jim Burgher, now away on vacation.

Miss Cornelia Davis spent Thursday night in Kingston with her friend, Eleanor Carey, where they attended the high school play, Macbeth."

Miss Edna Oakley of Olive Bridge suffered a quite severe burn on her hand recently while operating one of the household electrical devices.

Mrs. Fannie Boice of Main street was a neighborly caller at West Shokan Heights Thursday afternoon.

Harlow McLean of Brodhead reports making favorable progress with his new dairy barn addition.

October 21, 1881, there occurred in the old farm home in West Shokan the death of the venerable Henry M. Crispell, grandfather of Mrs. Matie Davis. The old Crispell homestead foundation sites are now high and dry above the receded west basin water line.

On Wednesday Mrs. Katherine D. Morrison and Mrs. Kenneth Warren of Boiceville called on theeir former genial neighbor, Mrs. William Wagner, of Main street.

The school children are enjoying an extensive week-end vacation due to their teachers attending conference in Phoenicia on Thursday and Friday.

Billy Wagner of Main street is nursing a boil on his arm and meanwhile for several days past was unable to attend school.

Mrs. Francis Whispell and son of North Main street were entertained Thursday at the home of her grandmother, Mrs. May McGreewey, of High Point cross road.

Mrs. Bertha Thompson and daughter, Mrs. Herschel Geyer, and family of Main street have gone to Kingston for the winter.

PARIS ZOO RICH IN HISTORIC EPISODES

Now Being Spruced Up for 1937 Exposition.

Washington, D. C.—One of the Paris show places being spruced up in anticipation of the 1937 Exposition is the Jardin des Plantes, the famous zoological and botanical garden which spreads over 74 acres near the Seine.

"Isolated behind a high wooden fence, a large new cement house for ferocious animals is rapidly being reared," says the National Geographic society. "Zoo authorities expect to complete it before the influx of visitors next summer. It will replace the second oldest building in the zoo, the long low animal house, built in 1818, whose walls are stained and cracked. In more than 20 small cages in this old building lions, tigers, and other wild beasts pad around on ancient warped floors.

"Monkeys are already living in luxury in a large new monkey house completed in 1934, which, with its plate glass windows and immaculate white tiled walls, is a model of its kind.

One of Oldest Zoos.

"One of the oldest zoological and botanical gardens in Europe, the Jardin des Plantes was founded by Louis XIII and Guy de la Brosse in 1635 as an experimental garden for medicinal plants. An important collection of animals was not added until 1793.

"Today the botanical garden, greatly expanded since its inception, finds many frequenters. Visitors flock into the greenhouses filled with treelike ferns, flowering coffee trees, and tropical plants from the various French colonies. The Alpine garden contains rare plants from high altitudes in many countries. Under century-old trees women sit knitting and cast supervising glances at offspring riding in gay goat carts and on diminutive gray donkeys. Other mothers push heavy black perambulators down the long shady walks, stopping to admire magnificent dahlias in the ornate flowerbeds, or labeled specimens of medicinal and commercial plants.

"The Natural History museum and the Mineral museum both attract their devotees. But crowds wander in the greatest numbers through the zoological part of the garden. They stroll in family groups past the rustic wood houses of the ruminants, past the brilliant macaws screaming on their outdoor perches, and the swans preening themselves on the waters of a brook. Small boys in knitted or black velvet suits stare hypnotized at tigers. Little girls wave tiny white-gloved hands at keepers sweeping out cages with twig brooms. In spite of the signs 'Defense d'exciter les animaux,' men occasionally poke pointed sticks through the bars. Old women in pinwheel-decorated booths do a thriving business in small hard loaves of bread, 'Pain pour les animaux,' which visitors toss down to the polar and brown bears in the pits.

"It was probably just such bread that a kindly keeper used to steal from the bears' rations to give to a poor young artist sketching the animals. These exquisite pencil sketches made in the Jardin des Plantes can be seen in the Louvre, for the hungry young man was Antoine Louis Barye, later to become celebrated as an outstanding animal sculptor. His realistic small bronzes of animals in action are valued exhibits in art museums both in the old and new worlds.

Saw Exciting Times.

"The Jardin des Plantes has known many exciting times. During the siege of Paris in 1870-71, when famine was causing as much havoc as the Prussians, many of the animals were butchered for food. Starving Parisians paid as much as five dollars a pound for lion, bear, giraffe, and even hippopotamus meat. The shots that felled the animals were only slight disturbances in the garden where enemy shells were constantly shattering the glass of the greenhouses.

"The Jardin des Plantes has no giraffe at present, but in 1827 it exhibited the first living one ever seen in France. A present from the Pasha of Egypt, the creature arrived in Marseille wearing as an amulet a parchment inscribed with a passage from the Koran. It was accompanied by four Arab keepers, and three cows to furnish it with milk. Traveling on foot from Marseille to Paris, it created a stir all along the way. When it arrived in the capital, everyone flocked to the zoo to see it. Parisians went wild about it, dedicated songs and articles to it, and designed hats and dresses after it.

"The only previous excitement at the zoo that could compare with it was the sensation in 1795 caused by the arrival of two elephants from near Apeldoorn, Holland. They had traveled by land and on ships in specially built wooden cages mounted on wheels, but since the wagons sometimes broke down, it took them two years to make the approximately 300 mile journey.

"Not long after they arrived, the Jardin des Plantes was the scene of a strange activity. Sixteen conservatory artists solemnly played different kinds of music for the delectation of the elephants, whose reactions were being studied by scientists."

Fossilized Trees Found

Ashland, Pa. — Fossilized tree branches and odd rock formations were discovered atop Stormy hill by WPA workers while leveling the ground for a community park. Rock in the area is of comparative softness and only picks and shovels are required to break it up.

The 1936 Red Cross Poster

THIS year's American Red Cross poster emphasizes the theme that the Red Cross is "of, by and for the people."

Four million men and women are members of the Red Cross and through their membership dues they support its activities. Only in time of major disaster when needs for relief reach great proportions does the Red Cross ask the public for disaster relief funds. The membership funds represent the financial support of the Red Cross, and in turn this money is used to carry the Red Cross work of mercy to distressed citizens. Membership is open to all, without regard to race, color or creed, and the Red Cross services are given to all, without restriction.

The annual Roll Call for members is held Armistice Day to Thanksgiving Day, November 11-26.

The poster for 1936 is by Walter W. Seaton, noted illustrator and painter of movie and radio stars.

Woman Arrested on Charge of Reckless Driving at Bridge

Mrs. Ruth Loder Arrested by Fred Jahn of Ulster Park Following a Crash Between Their Cars in Which Mrs. Loder's Brother Was Seriously Hurt.

Mrs. Ruth Loder of Salisbury Mills was arrested at police headquarters on Friday afternoon on a charge of reckless driving that had been lodged against her by Fred Jahn of Ulster Park, following an auto accident at the entrance to the Rondout Creek Bridge in which Mrs. Loder's brother, Frank L. Thompson of Salisbury Mills, sustained a possible fracture of the skull, and is now under treatment at Kingston Hospital.

Bail was fixed Friday afternoon at $100, but Mrs. Loder was unable to furnish it and spent the night in the county jail, and was arraigned before Judge Culloton in police court this morning. She was represented today by Attorney William A. Kaercher, who entered a plea of not guilty in her behalf.

Attorney Kaercher called the attention of the court to the fact that Mrs. Loder's brother was in the hospital with a possible skull fracture and as he was one of the witnesses Mr. Kaercher asked for a two weeks adjournment so that the brother could be in court and testify.

Mr. Jahn did not oppose the postponement, and the hearing was set down for November 12. Bail was continued at $100 and was furnished.

The crash that led to the woman's arrest occurred, according to the police report, as Mr. Jahn who was riding over the bridge into Kingston halted his car when the red signal flashed on. As his car was stopped the car driven by Mrs. Loder, which was close behind, crashed into the rear of the Jahn car. The Loder car then swung to one side into one of the bridge abutments and one of the wheels was torn off. When the car came to a stop it was turned completely around and stood facing the Esopus side of the bridge. Both cars were badly damaged.

Mrs. Loder sustained a cut on the forehead which required several stitches to close while her brother, who had been hurled out of the car, was picked up unconscious and at a late hour last night remained in the same condition.

Other Police Cases

Frank Murray, a stranger, was arrested Friday afternoon on a charge of panhandling. He was stopping pedestrians on the street. He pleaded guilty and was sentenced to 10 days in jail.

Josiah A. Welch of Hunter street, arrested for public intoxication on Broadway, was fined $3.

F. S. Terwilliger of Wallkill, arrested on a charge of parking in the fire zone on Fair street, had his hearing set down for later in police court.

Turkey Supper At Mt. Marion.

A turkey supper will be held at the Mt. Marion Church on Thursday, October 29, starting at 5:30 p. m. The public is invited to come and enjoy a good supper and spend a pleasant evening with old friends.

Next Industrial Boxing Show is Scheduled for Friday, Oct. 30

The second card of boxing bouts for the treasury of the Mayor's Industrial Committee will be held Friday night, October 30, in the Municipal Auditorium.

Having run the first pugilistic promotion with success, the committee at its meeting in Mayor Heiselman's office last Tuesday voted to run another set of scraps and notified the local men in charge to make up a bill of scraps for the 30th.

After scanning the records of the Adirondack Division of the A. A. U. in which there are more than 500 boxers, a card was made up and presented to the A. A. U. for approval Commissioner Ben Becker of Albany put his stamp of approval on the ring menu, which is as follows:

5 Rounds Main Event.

Phil Coroma, 147, Albany, vs. Benny Richiano, 150, Schenectady.

5 Rounds Semifinal.

Matt Perfetti, 121, Schenectady, vs. Johnny Gardiner, 118, Albany.

5 Rounds Special.

Ed Hayes, 135, Albany, vs. Dunk Bala, 139, Amsterdam.

5 Rounds.

Ray Collier, 126, Albany, vs. Mario Severino, 125, Schenectady.

5 Rounds.

Billy DeFrest, 126, Albany, vs. Rock Rovella, 128, Schenectady.

3 Rounds.

Johnny Pulver, 130, Kingston, vs. Joe Settowski, 131, Albany.

3 Rounds.

Johnny Fress, 145, Kingston, vs. Paul Decker, 147, Troy.

All matches must be approved by the A. A. U. before they can go on, and the records of the boxers be free of any violations. Tardiness is one of the faults checked off on the cards of the scrappers, and the Golden Gloves team that was late in arriving for the first industrial bouts received a sharp reprimand although the excuse George Gainsford, their director reported to the A. A. U. heads, was accepted.

Commissioner Becker has notified the local boxing committee that all boxers for the show next Friday will be in Kingston early for their weigh-in and physical examination by Dr. L. E. Sanford, local health officer.

The first Industrial boxing show netted $142.83, the committee reported last Tuesday after all ticket stubs had been checked and bills paid. It is the expectation of the business men on it to double that amount on the card next Friday. A new seating arrangement is being planned to accommodate all desiring chairs.

Wesleyan Eleven Trims Duquesne

Pittsburgh, Oct. 24 (AP).—The proud Dukes of Duquesne are college football's latest Humpty Dumpties.

Seated serenely on the loftiest wall they ever scaled, after their stunning 7 to 0 upset of mighty Pittsburgh, the Dukes took an almost unbelievable Humpty Dumpty fall last night as the Bobcats from little West Virginia Wesleyan cracked them down, 2 to 0, before 15,000 startled home folks.

The Bobcats, hard fighting representatives of a college of some 500 students, located at Buckhannon among the wooded slopes of West Virginia's towering mountains, turned the nearly incredible trick in the first two minutes of play.

Roy Bachtel, right halfback and kicking wizard, opened the door by booting a punt out on the Duquesne 36-yard line. A bad pass from center was juggled on the next play and Paul Jatski drove in to tackle Ken Fechtloff, Duke's fullback, for a safety.

Maroon Harriers Competing Today

Kingston High School's cross country runners were scheduled to participate in the annual Mid-Hudson Interscholastic Meet at Annandale-on-Hudson this afternoon on Bard College course, competing against some of the outstanding schoolboy hill and dalers in the valley.

Coach Kinsella expected to send as Maroon representatives, Captain Johnny Leonard, Ike Campbell, Joe Hart, Jesse Shultis, George Celuch and Burgher. This band was to fight it out with such formidable squads at Nott Terrace of Schenectady, winners of the Manhattan College Invitation Meet at Van Cortlandt Park; Mont Pleasant, and the strong Red Hook team.

Two DUSO Games On Slate Today

The 1936 DUSO League campaign swung into action on two fronts this afternoon, with K. H. S. engaging Port Jervis at the local Fair Grounds and Newburgh Free Academy playing against the renowned Middletown aggregation at Wilson Field The Middle are top-heavy favorites to cop their first league encounter, while the Maroon rated a slight favorite over the visiting Red and Black brigade.

Yellow Jackets in Hudson on Sunday

Sunday afternoon the Brown Servicenter Yellow Jackets will play in Hudson, against the football team of that city, and hope to come out of the fray with a victory over the Columbia county gridders.

Coach Jerry Dann has been hammering away at new plays, and brushing up on the regular ones, in preparation for the tilt and is confident his Wasps will do better up the river than they did against the New Jersey pigskin toters behind the canvas walls at the Fair Grounds last Sunday.

A bus, in which local rooters may travel, if they desire, will leave the Servicenter, Broadway and Pine Grove avenue, at 12:30.

With a total of 37,454,809 automotive vehicles in use at the beginning of the current year, world motorization showed a gain of 2,099,499 units over the figure for January 1, 1935, according to the U. S. Department of Commerce. Ten years ago, the world total of automotive vehicles in use was 24,589,249.

There are 230 strings to a standard 88-note piano. Each has a tension of 150 to 200 pounds, placing a strain on the piano plate of between 15 to 20 tons.

Gaudy Gridders — By Pap'

When the teams representing St Mary's College and Marquete University clash at Soldiers Field, Chicago, October 30, the rival coaches will be real veterans from the standpoint of service at a single school.

Ed (Slip) Madigan, St. Mary's mentor, has been headman at the California college for 16 years. After graduating from Notre Dame in 1920, Madigan coached at Portland University (Oregon) that fall and went to St Mary's in 1921.

Frank Murray will be directing his 15th consecutive Marquette eleven. This is Murray's 17th season on the Golden Avalanche staff but he worked in 1920-'21 as assistant coach. Murray played his football at Tufts.

For the first time in the 16 years he has been coaching at St. Mary's, Madigan has been running his varsity through regular scrimmage practice without using the huddle. Not often, it is true, but every now and then Slip instructs his quarterback, Lou Ferry, to crack the whip after each play without consulting anyone The team lined up speedily after each down and, responding to Ferry's sharp commands, rolled over the big freshman squad with a smoothness that bespoke great power.

Huddle Has Its Uses

"We have no intentions of completely abandoning the huddle," Madigan explains. "Ferry's the only signal man I'd trust with such an assignment, and he'll use it mainly as a threat, huddling when he thinks something is wrong and at other times, to throw the enemy off."

Slip believes the no-huddle system is much more effective than the conference method "It gives the opposing team much less time to second guess, destroys their confidence and gives a distinct edge to the best conditioned outfit," he points out.

Biggest drawback of the no-huddle system is the necessity for quick intelligence on the part of every member of the team employing it, according to the Moraga mentor.

"This is the first team I've ever coached, and one of the few I've ever seen that hasn't one or two members who find it too difficult to know and remember a repertoire of 50 or 60 plays," Madigan adds

Gridmen By Specialties

Here's how Madigan rates his best men in the different football departments this season:

Kicker, Jerry Dowd, passer, Les Groux; blocker, Lou Ferry; plunger, Tony Falkenstein; open-field runner, Hugh Sill, fastest man, Ned O'Laughlin, most promising sophomore, Lou Remassa; pass-catcher, Dutch Timm.

The best all-around player, in Slip's opinion, is Floyd Maxham, triple-threat fullback, exceptional in no particular phase but above the average in every division of play.

Every time the St. Mary's football team plays a game at "home" the Galloping Gaels must travel over 30 miles of land, 20 miles of water, pass through three metropolitan cities and visit three counties. The Gaels' home field is Kezar stadium in San Francisco To get there from Moraga Valley they must pass through Berkeley, Oakland and across the bay to San Francisco Counties visited are Contra Costa, Alameda and San Francisco. The Gaels will have to cover this route six times this season.

Walter Shinn's now famous red helmet is likely to find a resting place in Pennsylvania's trophy room The sophomore wore his lucky helmet when the Quakers downed Princeton on Franklin Field to continue the luck it has brought in every game in which Shinn has worn it.

The red top-piece is an heirloom from Shinn's prep school days at Hun School Hun never lost a game when Shinn wore the favorite helmet. When Walter went to Penn, he naturally took it with him

Penn lost to Yale this year when Shinn did not wear the red helmet, so, a few minutes before the contest with Princeton, he asked Coach Harvey Harman's permission to wear the talisman. The leave was granted, and Shinn's teammates rubbed their hands on the gleaming head-gear just before the kickoff.

We do not know why any American citizen should be satisfied to live on a dole or on charity in any other form Our idea is that they would like to have the chance to support themselves. If that is what they are looking for they will vote for Landon.—Yakima, Wash., Republic

Hometown Blow-Off Awaits Yankee-Italo Triumvirate

TONY LAZZERI

By SAM JACKSON

San Francisco (AP).—The Lazzeris, the Crosettis, the Di Maggios and their compatriots are ready for the big blow-off.

It will be staged in a locale where blow-offs are rather common—San Francisco's Italian quarter. But this promises to be something special in the way of a fiesta.

Their countrymen for a long time have been proud of Tony Lazzeri and

FRANK CROSETTI

Frankie Crosetti, the Italian colony's established baseball idols.

But it took the ballyhoo and subsequent performance of young Joe DiMaggio in his first year with the New York Yankees to raise local baseball consciousness to fever heat.

The fact that all three helped drive the Yankees to the American League pennant and world championship of 1936 has not hurt any.

Now the Yankees' Italian triumvirate is going to be welcomed home in royal style.

Di Maggio already has been met at the ferry by Mayor Angelo Rossi—himself of Italian extraction—and quiet, self-effacing Lazzeri and his wife have reopened their pleasant cottage down the peninsula.

Parents Invited

The celebration, tentatively slated for early November, awaits the plans of Crosetti, who delayed his return home.

The scene will be the Italian Athletic Club, which recently opened a costly new building in the heart of the North Beach Italian district. None of the three is a member now, but DiMaggio has played for the club and the others are bound to it by many ties of friendship.

Parents of all three will share in the festivities.

DiMaggio's father and some of his brothers are crab fishermen, and after a few discouragements at the beginning of his baseball career, Joe almost joined them in the business. The elder Di Maggio speaks little English, Joe's mother, none Out of season, Joe always has been very much the home boy and resorts to his four admiring sisters.

JOE DI MAGGIO

On his arrival home Joe denied he was engaged to a New York girl.

Crosetti's Single, Too

Lazzeri's parents live across the city from the principal Italian colony, but in and near "Butchertown" there are numerous fellow countrymen and this lesser colony has its own athletic club and traditions.

Owing to the fact he has been up in the big time so long that his efforts are taken as a matter of course and to the additional fact that he made his early baseball reputation in Salt Lake City instead of in San Francisco, Lazzeri has perhaps less of a personal following in his home town than the other two His father is a trucker.

Crosetti, unmarried like DiMaggio, lives with his parents in the smart Marina district overlooking the Golden Gate He played semi-pro ball around San Francisco several years

Although North Beach retains its strong Latin personality—supporting two Italian-language daily newspapers, among other things—virtually every resident, like Lazzeri, Crosetti and Di Maggio, is a good American citizen.

STONE RIDGE

Mrs. Harold Hoffman, Mrs Kate Beatty and daughter, Miss Ethel Beatty attended the play, "The First Commandment", given at the Clinton Avenue M. E. Church in Kingston on Tuesday evening.

Miss Katherine Cantine entertained the members of the Missionary Society of the Reformed Church at her home on Thursday afternoon.

Mrs. Green Lockwood and granddaughter, Margaret Osterhoudt, visited friends in Kingston on Friday and Saturday and called on Charles Roosa, a former resident of this place, who is ill at his home

The Rev. K. M. Reynolds and Miss Mae Bogart of Port Ewen and Mr. and Mrs. Chester Lyons of Ashokan called on George Weeks on Tuesday. The many friends of Mr. Weeks regret to hear that he is still confined to his home with bronchitis and congestion of the lungs.

Mrs. Mae Miller entertained Mrs. Anderson of Hurley on Tuesday.

The fact that 2 and 2 make 4 is so self evident that no one argues about it. At the present time the federal government has a debt of about $35,000,000,000 and an annual income of about $4,000,000,000. Annual interest charges amount to nearly $1,000,000,000, figured at 2 per cent. The government's total debt is, roughly, eight times its annual income. Put an individual on the same basis: Suppose he earned $3,600 a year and borrowed $30,000. At 2 per cent interest, he would pay $600 a year carrying charge. The average person earning $3,600 a year is certainly in no position to repay a $30,000 debt, particularly if he has to keep borrowing to meet new obligations.

Keresman Announces Reception Of A. B. C. Charter by Local Unit

At the meeting in the Y. M. C. A., Friday night, announcement was made that the Kingston Bowling Association had received its formal charter in the American Bowling Congress and was a member in good standing of the national body.

Announcement about the reception of the charter was made by Peter Keresman, ardent bowling enthusiast, who presided over the meeting as president of the Kingston association. Mayor Conrad J. Heiselman is honorary president.

Secretary Charles J. Tiano reported to the 20 bowling captains at the session that Kingston is represented in the A. B. C. by 46 teams, comprising outfits from the several leagues, Silver Palace, City, Colonial and Y. M. C. A. Mercantile.

The executive committee of the Kingston Bowling Association consists of the following.

President, Peter Keresman.
Secretary, Charles J. Tiano.
Treasurer, Jose Alvarez.
First vice-president, James G. Norton.
Second vice-president, Emil Boesneck.
Third vice-president, Joseph Huber.
Fourth vice-president, William Thiel.

Other members of the committee are: John Raible, Addison Jones, Clyde Wonderly, Gilbert Sampson

Pete Keresman was selected as the local delegate to the national convention next March in New York city.

It was voted to frame the city charter and keep it at the Y. M. C. A., where all future meetings of the City Association will be held.

Membership cards were passed out to the teams in the Silver Palace League Alley certificates were distributed.

Plans for the annual city tournament were discussed

The newly organized Colonial League was accepted into the City Association.

The secretary was authorized to purchase and draw up suitable stationery for the association business

The matter of the interpretation of fouls according to A. B. C. rulings came up for extended debate. It was decided to follow the A. B. C. rule book to the letter.

Today

Broadway: "The Great Ziegfeld." The star studded story of Florenz Ziegfeld that visited Kingston a few months ago comes back to the Broadway stage for a short stay, this time at popular prices and with no reserved seat stipulations. It is the glamorous, partly factual history of one of the world's greatest spenders, a man so extravagant in his tastes and desires that the vast sums he earned glorifying girls was a drop in the bucket to the amount he spent recklessly and without regard to his creditors. The drama at the Broadway deals with music, comedy, color and romance and thousands of players parade through the lavish and gigantic settings. This production is one of the most eye filling spectacles ever brought to the screen and some of the remarkable sets are almost breathless in their bigness and their beauty. William Powell plays the role of Ziegfeld and his supporting cast includes Myrna Loy, Harriet Hoctor, Ray Bolger, Ernest Cossart, Herman Bing, Virginia Bruce, Frank Morgan, Luise Rainer, Fannie Brice and Reginald Owen. An M-G-M extravaganza, produced by Hunt Stromberg.

Kingston: "The Texas Rangers." History offers a unique entertainment feature at the Kingston Theatre, the story of the Texas Rangers and their role in making the southwest a "reasonably safe place to live" back in the year 1887. This stalwart production directed by King Vidor with a color and sweep both inspiring and exciting, is one of the best action dramas of the building of the west ever brought to the screen. Many of the incidents which take place during the picture were taken from actual records and the Indian War is staged with reality and authenticity. The settings are magnificent and a talented cast includes Fred Mac Murray, Jack Oakie, Jean Parker, Lloyd Nolan, Bennie Bartlett and Edward Ellis. Here history, drama, romance and grandeur all blended into one of the season's better pictures.

Orpheum: "Every Night at Eight" and "Valley of the Lawless." The story of the radio amateurs and their rocky road to fame or failure, is duscussed all over again to dancing and music in the first of the Orpheum attractions. The plot centers around a band leader with so much conceit he fairly squeaks and of three girls who become part of his band and soar along with him to success on the radio. The cast stars George Raft and features Frances Langford, Patsy Kelly, the Three Radio Rogues, Alice Faye, Walter Catlett and there are several enjoyable song hits. "Valley of the Lawless" is the other feature with Johnny Mack Brown.

Tomorrow

Broadway: Same.
Kingston: Same.
Orpheum: "Two Fisted Gentleman" and "For the Service." The story of a pugilist who rises to the top of the heap in his profession through his wife's guidance only to slip and fall down the ladder of fame when he turns from her help and advice is disclosed in the first of the Orpheum features, a rugged, fist-flying drama that packs considerable of a punch in both story and physical action. The cast stars James Dunn and features June Clayworth, Thurston Hall, Gene Morgan and George MacKay. A Columbia Picture directed by Gordon Wiles. "For the Service" is the other attraction with Buck Jones in the saddle seeing justice is done in a lawless land.

Because solid woods warp easily, piano cases are made of a veneer. Solid wood cases would be much cheaper, if they were practical.

CONTEMPT OF COURT CHARGE LODGED AGAINST STEEGER

An order to punish for contempt of court has been granted by Supreme Court Justice Harry E. Schirick in the action of Mary H. Steeger, plaintiff, against Harold C. Steeger, defendant, of Kingston. An interlocutory decree of divorce was granted plaintiff on July 27, 1936, by the supreme court. Plaintiff now makes application to the court to punish for contempt for failure to comply with the order of the court which directed the payment of $10 a week for the support and maintenance of a child.

The order to show cause why defendant should not be punished for contempt of court is returnable before Justice Schirick at special term on November 6.

Petitioner alleges that on October 10 there was due her $41 and that the defendant has refused to pay in excess of $7 a week whereas the court directed a payment of $10 weekly. Fowler and Connelly appear for the petitioner.

SHANDAKEN

Shandaken, Oct. 24—The Ladies' Aid Society of the M. E. Church will hold a Halloween party at the church hall on Friday evening, October 30. Everybody invited.

Mrs. G. H. Gulnick and Mrs. Agnes Fouhy spent last week in New York city.

Mrs. Willard Gulnick attended the Home Bureau meeting at Kingston in which Mrs. Gladys Butt of Cornell University taught the local leaders the project of "grooming." Those who remember Mrs. Butt when she was here a few years ago will wish to attend the Home Bureau meeting on November 12, when Mrs. Gulnick will give the members of what she learned from Mrs. Butt last week. Place of meeting will be announced later.

Those attending the Fairlawn banquet at the Governor Clinton Hotel last Wednesday evening were Mr. and Mrs. F. S. Osterhoudt, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Miller, Miss Grace Forbes and Charles Griffin.

Mr. and Mrs. Otto Poehland motored to Lackawack on Sunday.

Harry Miller, Jr., is in Albany for some time.

Miss Margaret Hummel is ill at her home. Dr. Quinn of Phoenicia is attending her.

Miss Leonard Ford, Mrs. F. S. Osterhoudt and Burr Knight attended the Kingston District Meeting of Methodist pastors held at Windham recently. The Rev. Harold P. Sloan, the new editor of The Christian Advocate, addressed the meeting.

The teachers of the Shandaken school, Burroughs Blakeslee and Mrs. M. L. Bongartz, are attending the meeting of the teachers' association at Troy.

A. G. Brown is busy these days making extensive improvements to his home.

Business Certificate.

Highmount Holding Corporation, a corporation organized for the purpose of dealing in real estate and improving and operating real estate, has filed a certificate of incorporation with the county clerk. The principal office of the corporation is at Highmount. Town of Shandaken. There are 100 shares of capital stock with no par value. The directors are Joseph A. Braudie ad Benjamin Braudie of Middle Village, L. I., and Samuel Tick and Alexander Tick of Highmount.

CAMPAIGNING FROM HOSPITAL

From her room in a Washington hospital, Mrs. Ruth Bryan Owen Rohde, former minister to Denmark, resumed her speaking campaign on behalf of President Roosevelt. It was her first speech since she suffered a broken leg while making a campaign tour with her husband, Capt. George Rohde. He is shown making her comfortable before she broadcast her speech. ## Two Boy Scouts Receive Awards For Life Saving

Last evening at the Temple Emanuel Church, as part of the evening service, a gold medal of honor for life saving was presented by Scout Executive Wright on behalf of the National Court of Honor to Seaman Samuels of Troop No. 5, for the saving of the lives of Louis Greenspan and Philip Fertel at Rifton last May.

Following the presentation Rabbi Bloom's sermon dealt with the value of Scout training and he urged his people to give more serious thought to it and to enter into it in a more active and personal way.

Word was also received yesterday that the National Court of Honor has awarded a certificate of heroism to Donald Tyler of Troop No. 60 of Phoenicia, who last spring saved the life of a companion who had fallen through the ice.

Spanish Civil War Draws To Climax

that city was the only one completely held by the Bolshevists.

One of the prime figures of the "October Rebellion," he actually headed the forces which occupied the winter palace and participated in the arrest of the provincial government.

He comes of an old military family, was educated at a czarist military school and served in the Imperial Russian army before the revolution.

With this wide range of experience, his advice in Barcelona might become invaluable to the Spanish, particularly in organizing civilian elements as fighters.

He recently has been minister to Czechoslovakia and Lithuania.

CROSBIE NOT WITH LEAGUE AGAINST WAR AND FASCISM.

Due to the unfortunate error in handling the information concerning Paul Crosbie, Communist speaker, who addressed the meeting on Wednesday evening, October 22, at Pine Grove avenue and Broadway, he was listed in the newspapers as a member of the League Against War and Fascism.

Mr. Crosbie is not a member of the American League Against War and Fascism, but a leading member of the Long Island Blissville Local of the American Legion.

Madame X

Central Hudson Authorized to Give New Stock Shares

The Central Hudson Gas and Electric Corporation has been authorized by the Public Service Commission to issue within a period not later than November 1, 1936, not to exceed $7,030,000 par amount of 4½ per cent cumulative preferred capital stock, to consist of not to exceed 70,300 shares of the $100 par value each. The stock is to be issued in lieu of and in retirement of a like amount of the company's outstanding 6 per cent cumulative preferred capital stock of $100 par value each.

No less than 25,150 shares of the 4½ per cent stock is to be exchanged share for share for the 6 per cent stock plus a cash payment of $2.50 per share and an adjustment of dividends from October 1, 1936, in respect to each share of 6 per cent stock surrendered in exchange. Shares of the 4½ per cent stock not so exchanged are to be held by the company subject to the further order of the commission.

The commission also consented to the filing by the company in the office of the Secretary of the State of New York of a certificate of increase and of classification and reclassification of shares and of authorization of the issuance from time to time in one or more series of shares of a class of stock which is preferred as to dividends and assets. Approval was also given to the filing on January 1, 1937, in the office of the Secretary of State of a certificate of reduction of number of shares and reduction of the amount of capital.

Survey of Schools Is Under Way

and M.A. degrees. In No. 7, a room has been divided and the first grade which has been on part time is now on full time with Marjorie Zoller as teacher. She has been a substitute teacher and is a graduate of Kingston High School and New Paltz Normal School. Mildred Dean, a graduate of Kingston High School and New Paltz Norman, has been hired as a part-time teacher at No. 7.

The rules committee moved that when the board adjourn it do so to meet on November 20.

Van Ingen's Report

Superintendent Van Ingen filed the following report and the board then adjourned:

To the Board of Education:

Our School Savings System is in operation again this year. Thus far there have been five weekly deposits. Below is a summary of the amounts deposited by the school children in the first five periods for three years:

| | 1934 | 1935 | 1936 |
|---|---|---|---|
| Week 1.. | $1207.21 | $2595.24 | $4707.67 |
| Week 2.. | 964.55 | 1101.54 | 1411.00 |
| Week 3.. | 1143.28 | 970.79 | 1021.10 |
| Week 4.. | 1179.11 | 1055.79 | 1124.56 |
| Week 5.. | 1022.05 | 1078.42 | 1105.72 |
| Total .. | $5516.20 | $6801.88 | $9370.05 |
| Av. pr wk | 1103.24 | 1360.37 | 1874.01 |
| Due depositors | $103379.47 | $98912.40 | $100948.91 |

The above shows an increase in the amount deposited thus far in 1936 over 1934 of approximately 70 per cent and about 37 per cent over 1935.

Since the system was organized about 12 years ago, the total amount deposited is $554,436.11. It is interesting to know that over 3000 pupils in our public schools are banking each week through this system.

Night School

The Kingston Night School was opened October 5, 1936. The total registration is 184 which is an increase over 1935.

The following gives the classification of the students and the name of the instructor of each group.

Americanization—13—R. H. Van Valkenburgh

Bookkeeping—18—R. H. Woodard

Shorthand and typewriting—22—Thomas Kinsella

Shorthand and typewriting—39—D. F. Wilkes

Shorthand and typewriting—36—Margaret Bertrand

Public speaking—15—Anne B. McNeils

Mechanics and hydraulics—11—F. C. Gronemyer

Shop and mechanical drawing—21—H. Hoderath

Sewing—9—Ruth Glendening

Frank Meagher is acting as principal.

The number registered and the interest manifested indicates the need of a program of adult education. A cooking class has not been organized as in preceding years, because a sufficient number have not expressed a desire for this worthwhile subject. A class will be organized if the applications increase sufficiently. The school will be in session at least 50 nights. The sessions are now held each week on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday evenings from 7:15 to 9:15.

Respectfully submitted

Scotia Minister Injured in Auto Accident at Esopus

The Rev. John A. Wright of Scotia sustained a deep cut on the wrist, cut on the head and suffered from shock when the Chrysler sedan which he was driving left the road and crashed against the rocks alongside the highway at Esopus, shortly after 5 o'clock Friday afternoon. The accident happened when Mr. Wright's car ran off the edge of the concrete pavement, near where the Esopus village road crosses 9-W, as he was returning from Newburgh.

Deputy Sheriffs Vredenburg and Brown happened along shortly after the accident and rendered first aid, following which the Rev. Clarence E. Brown of Kingston, a friend of Mr. Wright's, took him to Saugerties and from there he was taken home. The car, which had been badly damaged along one side, was taken to Mott's garage at Esopus.
